Khrushchev Drops 1961 Deadline for German Peace Pact

Slow Negotiations Better Than Quick War, He Says

BONN, Germany (AP) — Premier Khrushchev removed the end-of-the-year deadline for a treaty with East Germany in his talks with Belgian Foreign Minister Paul-Henry Spaak, diplomatic sources reported today.

Khrushchev reportedly told Spaak that the Soviet Union prefers slow negotiations to a quick war, these sources said.

Spaak reported to the council of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization last Thursday on his five-hour talks with Khrushchev in Moscow on the previous Tuesday.

Denies Pledge Made

Khrushchev was said to have told Spaak he never had committed himself to signing a peace treaty with East Germany before the end of this year.

Germany officials expressed surprise at this. On several occasions Khrushchev has declared that he will sign a treaty with East Germany before the end of the year, turning over control of access to West Berlin to the East German Communist regime, unless the West agrees to a German pact on his terms.

"As far as we know he has said this a number of times," officials said.

Delay Indicated

Diplomats said they understood the Spaak report to mean that Khrushchev now proposed to delay signing an East German peace treaty if negotiations are under way by the end of the year.

Khrushchev also was reported to have told Spaak he was ready to discuss with the Western powers other subjects beside Berlin and Germany.

Leftist General Wants Congo to Invade Katanga

LEOPOLDVILLE, The Congo (AP)—Gen. Victor Lundula, commander of leftist military forces in Stanleyville, put pressure on the Congo central government today to invade Katanga.

Fears grew in Elisabethville, capital of the secessionist province, that fighting is about to break out again. Europeans began fleeing the city. A report from Ndola, Northern Rhodesia, said nearly 400 whites, mostly Belgians, had reached there from Katanga.

The campaign for an invasion of Katanga was being whipped up by supporters of the late Patrice Lumumba, who launched such an attack before he was overthrown as premier last September.

The Lumumbists have regained key positions in the central government with the reconciliation of Antoine Gizenga's rebel Stanleyville regime and the central government headed by Premier Cyrille Adoula.

20 Injured in Train Wreck

Freight Derails, Slamming Into Passenger Coach

BAY, Ark. (AP) — A freight train derailed and slammed into a passenger train parked on a siding Sunday night, injuring at least 20 persons.

There were no deaths reported, but attendants at a Jonesboro, Ark., hospital where the injured were taken said at least five of them were in critical condition.

Thurman Adam, a porter, said a hotbox caused a wheel to fly off one of the freight cars as the freight rumbled by the motionless passenger train.

Adam said in the chain reaction that followed about 20 of the freight's 88 cars left the tracks. Some piled atop the overturned passenger train. The engine of the passenger train was knocked into a nearby cotton field.

Switched to Siding

Frisco officials said the passenger train had been switched to a siding to allow the freight to pass. They said the freight had slowed to about 15 miles an hour.

Passengers said they saw some of the freight cars start to move sideways on the track as the freight train "just started coming apart."

"It was terrible, I just don't know what happened," one of the injured said at Jonesboro. "There was a big noise and then all the lights went out."

The passenger train's single coach was carrying about 35 persons, most of them Frisco employees on their way to work at a railroad yard construction site.

Residents Flee Island Volcano

PAHOA, Hawaii (AP)—Frightened residents of Hawaii Island's Puna district tried to learn today what has happened to 100 million cubic yards of lava that has disappeared from view.

Volcanologists, speculating on the possible reappearance of the molten rock, also feared tempestuous Kilauea volcano might be about to erupt again.

The volcano, one of the most active in the world, turned off a flow of molten lava Sunday after about 200 million cubic yards of the melted rock had spurted in less than 24 hours.

U.N. Failure in Katanga

People Rallied to Tshombe As Invaders Crossed Border

BY SMITH HEMPSTONE
Chicago Daily News Foreign Service

ELISABETHVILLE, the Congo — The U. N. military action in Katanga was based on a series of psychological, political and tactical errors and misconceptions.

The U. N.'s first mistake was a political one in which it underestimated the popular support of President Moise Tshombe. The U. N. obviously felt in New York and Leopoldville and probably in Elisabethville headquarters of special representative Conor Cruise O'Brien that Tshombe's regime would topple at the first nudge.

Powerful Support

This thinking prevented the U. N. from realizing that Tshombe's support in the present breakaway state (which covers only about the southern 60 per cent of the former province) was and is massive.

The U. N. handed Tshombe a psychological trump when it became necessary to use force in the attempt to topple his regime. Even those Katangans lukewarm toward Tshombe rallied to his support when men of alien races, white and brown, spilled Katangan blood on Katangan soil.

The chances for quick success were slim.

Large Air Show Crowd Sees Cargo Plane Crash; 3 Killed, Dozen Hurt

WILMINGTON, N.C. (AP)—An Air Force cargo plane carrying six daredevil Army parachutists and rescuers rushed to the broken C-123 to drag out the injured from the gaping holes in the fuselage. Three of four helicopters whirled out to the Hanover County airport. One hovered over the burning wreckage, the wash from its rotors beating back flames from two men in the cockpit.

The wife of a Civil Air Patrol officer, watching the CAP "Friendship Day" show on television from her mother's hospital room in Wilmington, dashed down to alert the emergency room and then began contacting blood donors.

6 Skydivers Hurt

By helicopter and ambulance, rescuers brought in the casualties. The dead were Sgt. Robert T. Turner, an Army photographer from Ft. Bragg, N.C., home base of the sky divers; and two Air Force men, Capt. John E. Markel and T. Sgt. John Lesso, both of Nellis (Nev.) Air Force Base.

U. S. Has 'Both Will and Weapons' to Fight Any Aggressor, He Tells U.N.

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP) — President Kennedy told the United Nations today the United States has "both the will and the weapons" to resist aggression. He challenged the communist world to drop the arms race in favor of a "peace race."

The president, in an address alternately tough and conciliatory, told the Soviet Union the United States believes a peaceful agreement is possible for the central world crisis, that of divided Berlin. But he added that threat of force must be rejected, because "yielding to threats can only lead to war."

The president's address covered the broad spectrum of crises confronting a frightened world. He proposed a six-point disarmament plan and called for the creation of a U. N. Peace force.

Kennedy urged the small nations of the world to rally behind the U. N. and defeat Soviet efforts to impose a "troika" system of three-man control over its police power.

The troika, he said, would "replace order with anarchy, action with paralysis and confidence with gross confusion."

The President told the 99-nation General Assembly the United Nations very life is at stake in the issue raised by the death in Africa of Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold. He urged for new strength and new rules for the United Nations.

President Kennedy proposed an approach to disarmament which would be both far-reaching and realistic.

Urges Race for Peace

"It is therefore our intention to challenge the Soviet Union not to an arms race but to a peace race — to advance with us step by step, stage by stage, until general and complete disarmament has actually been achieved. We invite them now to go beyond agreement in principle and to reach agreement on actual plans," he said.

Attacking the Soviet proposal to substitute a three-man executive for a single secretary-general, Kennedy urged strengthening of the charter first of all by selection of an outstanding civil servant to continue Hammarskjold's work.

Of the Soviet plan, he said "To install a triumvirate or any panel or rotating authority, in the United Nations administrative offices would replace order with anarchy, action with paralysis, and a typewriter as ransom."

Leaders Hail Firm Position

Mansfield Names 2 Men as Possible Secretary-General

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congressional leaders of both parties gave enthusiastic approval today to President Kennedy's proposals before the United Nations for world disarmament and to his firm stand on Berlin.

In a statement applauding the speech, Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana suggested that the United Nations consider either President Adolfo Lopez Mateos of Mexico or Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru of India for the post of U. N. secretary-general.

Mansfield said he had no information as to whether either would be willing to accept the post but that it would be difficult to imagine the Soviet Union fighting either of them.

Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois said Kennedy had expressed a "magificent hope" for a peaceful settlement of the world's difficulties.

Agree Against Troika

"I was glad to note the firmness with which he dealt with the Berlin situation," Dirksen said. "I think he disposed of the Troika question with his observation that there may be three horses but only one driver."

Similarly, Mansfield said "I agree wholeheartedly with what the president had to say on the principle of Troika" — the Russian idea for a three-man committee to replace the secretary-general.

"It was very statesmanlike," Mansfield said of the president's address. He said he hoped its immediate effect would be to ease world tensions. He emphasized, "What happens rests not with us but with the rest of the countries of the world, especially the Soviet Union."

Peace Returns as GM Strike Ends

Three-Year Contract Signed As United Auto Workers Now Turn Attention to Ford Co.

DETROIT (AP)—Peace was expected to return today to the issues Sept. 6, the union authority's largest manufacturing local unions to strike Sept. 11, if they had not effected local.

The United Auto Workers Union level agreements by then, ordered two weeks of crippling. With the passing of that dead-end strike Sunday night and line strikes quickly sprang up. At instructed all workers to return to the peak 92 of GM's 129 plants their jobs today—or as soon as were shut down and more than GM is ready for them.

While decreeing peace with GM, production workers idled.

When the company and union reached agreement on national economic issues last Wednesday the number of local-level strikes had dwindled to 24. But at five Board authorized both the some plants where settlements strike-ending and strike-threatening moves in a 5½-hour meeting.

The UAW's International Executive Board authorized both the some plants where settlements strike-ending and strike-threatening moves in a 5½-hour meeting. The board has over-all power within the union.

Let Slide
The UAW had let negotiations slide at both Ford and Chrysler at both Ford and Chrysler. The Corp., while a new pattern-setting pact was hammered out at GM, UAW President Walter P. Reuther already has said "Ford's will be the next door I knock on."

The date of any strike was left to the UAW's bargaining team to the UAW's bargaining team there. Ken Bannett, UAW Ford Department director said, "Things must get moving as of today."

The GM package includes: 1. A national package, but surprised national economic agreement; 2. A national package, but surprised national economic agreement; 3. A national package, but surprised national economic agreement.

Local Strikes
It was local strikes over the latter that knocked out GM for almost two weeks.

Clash Expected At Meeting of Episcopalians

National Council Membership Main Topic of Dispute

DETROIT (AP)—A clash over the conduct of the National Council of Churches moved toward a showdown today at the Episcopal general convention.

Up for consideration in the House of Deputies, the lay-clerical chamber of the bicameral church congress, were several resolutions aimed at curbing the council, or severing ties with it.

The council, an interdenominational cooperative body made up of representatives of 33 denominations with nearly 40-million members, includes most of the nation's major Protestant, Orthodox and non-Roman Catholic bodies.

It has been under running fire from various individuals and groups in the country, some of whom accuse it of being too easy on communism, although the council has repeatedly denounced communism.

Regular Accuser
One of the regular accusers, the Rev. Carl McIntire, Collingswood, N.J., "Bible Presbyterian," showed up here, distributing an "Episcopalian packet" denouncing the council.

The packet also contained articles condemning church reunion moves, and charging some Episcopal leaders with heretical teachings.

The approximately 900 voting delegates to the convention also have been bombarded with similar literature from sources, in a dozen cities in Arizona, Louisiana, Texas, Ohio, California and elsewhere.

Some Racial
Mailings of such material were received by all delegates before they came here. Some of it also contained racial segregationist leaflets.

J. Irwin Miller, the Columbus, Ind., diesel engine manufacturer who is president of the council, flew into town last week, and hit back at some of the charges being circulated.

"There are no Communists in the National Council of Churches any more than there are in the American Bankers Association. I am a member of both and they're not there, and they're not in Rotary or other groups. Why do people pick on one and not the other?" he said.

The campaign against the council has produced tensions in several denominational conventions recently, including demands for withdrawal.

However, in each case where the issue boiled to the floor, the Methodist Church, the United Presbyterian Church, the American Baptist Church, and others have stuck with the council, and commended it.

Teachers Told To Use Sense in Teaching Health
MILWAUKEE (AP)—Teachers in Wisconsin's Roman Catholic schools were told Friday to use common sense while instructing their students about health.

Eugene M. Cox, public health educational supervisor of the Milwaukee Health Department, hit out strongly at "anti-smoking" campaigns for teenagers as he spoke to a sectional conference of the annual Catholic Teachers' Institute.

Cox said such campaigns, sponsored by the state and the American Cancer Society, are ineffective for junior high school students. He said anti-smoking education must begin in the early primary grades to resist the "brainwashing of Madison Avenue health courses about communicable diseases."

He also attacked attendance contests in schools, calling them "contrary to everything taught in convention."

Enroute to Moscow on a school scholarship, Huldah Clark, 14, poses with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Clark of Newark, N. J., on a plane ramp at New York's Idlewild Airport. The scholarship came on invitation of Soviet Premier Khrushchev and her father believes she will have more educational opportunities in the USSR than in the United States.

Sumner Welles Dies After 3-Week Illness

Was Author of 'Good Neighbor' Policy Under FDR

BERNARDSVILLE, N.J. (AP)—Sumner Welles, 68, undersecretary of state for six years during the administration of President Franklin D. Roosevelt, is dead.

Welles died early Sunday at the home of his wife's family after an illness of three weeks. He had suffered a heart attack some years ago.

A specialist in Latin American affairs, Welles was credited with coining the phrase, "good neighbor policy," and of persuading President Roosevelt to pursue such a policy.

Went to Cuba
Welles served briefly as ambassador to Cuba and later was in charge of the State Department's division of Latin American affairs.

He was one of the principal American diplomats assigned by Roosevelt to work on the formulation and organization of the United Nations.

Promoted Later
Welles was named assistant secretary of state in 1933 after Roosevelt's inauguration. He was promoted to undersecretary, the No. 2 position in the State Department, four years later.

His resignation in the summer of 1943 was believed to have resulted from a clash of personalities with Secretary of State Cordell Hull. Hull was said to have resented Welles' habit of going directly to the White House with problems and advice.

U. S. Will Use A-Bomb, Bob Kennedy Declares

WASHINGTON (AP)—Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy says "there is no question" that President Kennedy is prepared to use nuclear weapons to maintain the Allies' position in Berlin.

Appearing on an NBC television interview program Sunday, "Meet the Press"—the attorney general said: "The President and the free world are willing to use nuclear weapons to preserve our position in Berlin, to insure that the people of Berlin remain free and that we have access to that city."

The attorney general said he "would hope" that Soviet Premier Khrushchev has come to this realization within the last few weeks.

Robert Kennedy said that the matter of possible use of nuclear weapons probably takes more of his brother's time and thoughts than anything else, "because when we are talking about using nuclear weapons we are talking about almost the destruction of the human race—at least a very large proportion of it."

"But on this question of Berlin and on the question of principle, and the question of whether in a particular set of circumstances if we retreat that we would never be able to stand up again, that in that particular area, as we are in Berlin at the present time."

Republicans Want to Capture Majority of House in '62 Elections

Goldwater Hopeful of Gaining At Least Nine Seats in Senate

BY JACK BELL

WASHINGTON (AP)—The outline for a get-tough campaign against the Democrats in the 1962 congressional elections may come out of a meeting today of three party leaders with former President Dwight D. Eisenhower.

Chairman Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., of the GOP Senatorial Campaign Committee said before he left for the Gettysburg, Pa. session he expects general agreement for an all-out effort to capture additional House and Senate seats.

GOP National Chairman William E. Miller and Rep. Bob Wilson, R-Calif., head of the GOP Congressional Campaign Committee, already have said that if Republicans work hard enough they can capture the House. Goldwater aims for a nine-seat gain in the Senate, where the GOP now is outnumbered 64 to 36.

Hard Attacks
From the tack taken recently by Eisenhower and the three party chairmen, President Kennedy and his advisers have come to the conclusion they can expect hard-swinging attacks by the Republicans on foreign policy actions as well as on domestic programs.

Kennedy was reported by close associates as having been upset about Eisenhower's recent attack on his handling of international developments. Miller has been especially critical of the President's role in the Berlin crisis. Goldwater and Wilson have added to this chorus.

The President has decided, it was said, not to answer any of these attacks himself but to work at preserving the surface bipartisanship on international matters. There is every expectation that as negotiations over Berlin get in the tough stages he will call on Eisenhower to stand beside him.

Made It Clear
But Kennedy has made it clear that this doesn't carry over into the domestic field. He was quoted as telling congressional leaders that it would be a critical blow

Northern School Boards Charged With Segregation

Chicago Daily News Service
WASHINGTON — The U.S. Commission on Civil Rights reported today that many school boards in the north are violating the Constitution by segregating Negro pupils in their schools.

The statement, made in a report on discrimination in education prepared for President Kennedy and Congress, was made public today.

The report suggests that recent court rulings have established that school boards in the north are violating the 14th Amendment when they draw school district lines to segregate Negro and white pupils, or when school transfer policies result in segregation.

Common in North
It says that these practices are common in many northern cities. "School boards having unracial schools can no longer justify it merely on the basis of residential patterns in combination with neighborhood school policy," the commission concludes.

"Any existing segregation may be constitutionally suspect. School boards that want to operate their schools in a constitutional manner may have to inquire into the cause of any existing segregation."

"They may have to prove that zoning lines follow residential patterns by coincidence, not design; that the sites and sizes of schools are not fixed to assure segregation; that residential patterns were not officially created in the good chance of accomplishing tax first instance."

Mentioned Ruling
In particular the commission mentioned a Federal court decision in New Rochelle, N.Y., early this year, that required the sit down at the table and review these matters all over again."

Nelson was interviewed on television by a group of Milwaukee newsmen.

His tax revision plan, hinged to an increase in income tax rates, Supreme Court's decision in the was turned down by the GOP-dominated legislature. The governor vetoed the Republican proposal for a three per cent retail sales tax.

The 1961 Legislature is scheduled to meet again this fall.

Can State Spending be Cut?

Apparently doubting that a satisfactory agreement with Democratic Gov. Nelson on a new state taxing policy can be worked out, some Republican legislative leaders are turning public attention to a pending resolution in the state legislature that would cut the state budget sufficiently to resolve the state treasury deficit problem.

We share the doubts of our Madison correspondent that this is a practicable alternative, although it may well be a useful political weapon for the legislative leaders during this period of difficult negotiations with the governor preparatory to the reconvening of the legislature on Oct. 30.

Aside from the fact that the legislature has typically in the past been unable to stand up against the numerous and powerful pressures for the expansion of appropriations — not to mention rearmament — there is the corollary consideration that an across-the-board cut would be unwise and dangerous, while the kind of precision cutting that might be justified is not available under the present condition of the legislative machinery.

The growth of the state government in recent decades has been so great that the legislative finance committee now is barely able to touch the surface of spending programs, with respect to auditing and interrogation.

This brings up a suggestion that has been published in this newspaper before, and that most recently was offered in these pages by Lieut. Gov. Warren P. Knowles, one of the most responsible of the current leaders in Wisconsin partisan politics.

Mr. Knowles suggested the creation of a citizens commission on economy, in effect, a broadly based and constructively critical group that would examine the most expensive of the spending programs now authorized by the legislature, and measure them according to their judgment of need and their estimate of the financial capacity of the treasury and the productive capacity of the state economy upon which they must ultimately rest.

There is an apt precedent here. Three years ago Gov. Nelson, confounded by the obvious revenue difficulties that confronted him and recognizing realistically that it would be his lot to sponsor new revenue legislation during his term, invented the so-called "blue ribbon commission" to examine possible innovations and reform on the revenue side of the fiscal system. That commission's report was a valuable instrument for civic education, and it may yet turn out to be the hammer with which real tax revision in Wisconsin can be forged.

Whatever the conclusions of a sister commission on state expenditures, the result would be fruitful. If it finds ways to economize, many citizens will be encouraged. If it does not, at least the doubts of those who ponder the enormous pace of the spending increases may be resolved.

Editor Sees Nixon Removing Self As Presidential Candidate in '64

John S. Knight in Detroit Free Press
For several months, former Vice President Nixon has been engaged in some painful soul-searching about his political future.

Mr. Nixon's problem — to use a baseball broadcaster's phrase — is how to stay alive.

There are two choices, or possibly three, open to the 1960 Republican standard bearer:

1 — Nixon can run for governor of California in 1962.

2 — He can decline to be a candidate and devote his time to writing and lecturing on international affairs.

3 — If it seems inexpedient in 1964 to again seek the Presidential nomination, Nixon can run for the Senate in California against Senator Clair Engle, a Democrat.

All of these possibilities have been given a meticulous examination by Mr. Nixon and his advisers. They have been trying to determine which course of action will best serve Mr. Nixon's continuing ambition to occupy the White House.

Choice No. 1 is being strongly urged upon Nixon by California Republican leaders and the financial interests which gave him such strong support in 1960.

The governorship of California is a powerful post and provides ample political exposure. In Mr. Nixon's case, it is likewise fraught with substantial risks such as dealing with a top-heavy Democratic legislature.

There is also no certainty that Nixon can be elected as Gov. Pat Brown is regaining some of his former popularity and Mr. Nixon is the one Republican against whose candidacy the Democrats would present a united front.

Another complicating factor is the primary threat from former Gov. Goodwin Knight who has said he is in the race "no matter what Nixon does."

Choice No. 2 probably is closest to Nixon's personal inclinations. The ex-Vice President is inclined to stay out of the political fray at this time. He theorizes that he can perform a distinct service for the Republican Party through his syndicated newspaper articles and frequent public appearances in all sections of the country.

Choice No. 3 is a possible alternative depending upon the trend of events and President Kennedy's popularity chart. Should Nixon be elected to the U.S. Senate in 1964, he could be a formidable contender for the Republican Presidential nomination in 1968.

While Nixon's hesitancy about announcing his plans is understandable, this self-doubt has not added to the image of a decisive man.

By and large, a public troubled by Berlin and the threat of a nuclear war has shown little interest in Nixon's personal political fortunes.

At this stage, only one thing seems certain: Richard M. Nixon will not be the Republican candidate in 1964.

If he is elected governor of California, he will serve out the four years. If Nixon decides against running, his party following will drift to Gov. Rockefeller or Senator Goldwater.

Best bet: Nixon will shortly announce that he is a candidate for governor of California.

Under the Capitol Dome

An Appraisal of GOP Candidates for 1964

BY JOHN WYNGAARD

MADISON — The 1964 national election is many months distant but already the queries are heard about the prospect of a reaction to the problem of Republican national ticket leadership in that year when President Kennedy will very likely wear the colors of the Democratic party in another contest for control of the national government.

Will Wisconsin again want Nixon or Rockefeller, or Goldwater or somebody whose star has not yet risen sufficiently at the moment?

A tentative answer, for those who have done some scouting of representative and practicing Republicans, is that Nixon probably would be the most acceptable ticket leader of the party in the next engagement, as far as the outlook can be gauged now.

The answer is tentative because there are some reservations among the men and women the defense department under defense Sec. Robert McNamara has gone "soft on Communism." who will make the decisions for the Wisconsin party.

One top Republican figure put it succinctly and accurately when he remarked:

"It will probably be Nixon, but he has a lot of fence-building to do."

THE RESERVATIONS

It is difficult to sift the legitimate reservations about Nixon as a candidate and what is perhaps the normal resentment against the ticket leader who lost the election, and by such a tiny margin that it will be a school lecture text for the next century.

Quite manifestly also, Nixon needs a method and a forum for a return to the national consciousness as a ticket leader and the governorship of California probably is the most obvious, if not the only practical, way to achieve it. The manner in which Mr. Eisenhower, now retired from public life, has moved into the Republican publicity vacuum lately is suggestive of Nixon's problem, as the GOP pragmatists hereabout look at it.

Nixon's great asset, if he manages to stay in sight as a national figure for the next three years, is his deliberate travel along the middle of the political road.

To the politician, picking a ticket leader is not only the selection of a man who may head the government, but the selection of a running-mate who can do most for the party in courthouse and statehouse election terms. The purpose of party politics is the gaining of power.

THE OTHERS

The general view at the moment is that whatever other attractions of mind and personality they may have, Rockefeller and Goldwater represent extremes of the political spectrum and thus would not be as useful in the total vote-getting objective of the local party.

Rockefeller will have an appeal to the liberals, independents and Republican dissidents of various hues who, although numerically important, perhaps, won't be the kind who will be making the decisions in the Republican party when the time for such decisions comes.

Sen. Goldwater's position is different. He is the new glamor candidate. The enthusiasm for his cause approaches crusade proportions and especially among the younger voices that have shown such a pronounced conservative bent in recent Republican political activity. Yet there are some doubts that the Goldwater backing, in actual vote potential, is as important as the voice volume of his admirers suggests. As there are doubts that a man who leans leftward will have enough general party support to be a serious contender — in Wisconsin terms — there also is a conviction, although more reluctant, that Goldwater leans altogether too far to the right to be of much value to a candidate for governor, or sheriff, or whatever, in a typical Wisconsin election situation.

Better Fruit Through Use of X-Ray

A new grape shortly will be produced in Southern California identical with the present early white seedless Perlette grape, except the clusters will be looser and it will cost from $200 to $400 per acre less to raise.

The new variety is the result of an experiment in X-ray mutation. The Perlette grape, as now produced, develops such tight clusters that unless they are thinned the individual grapes rupture and decay. To change this characteristic, radiation was directed into bundles of bud wood from Perlette vines. When the irradiated buds were grafted onto normal vines, some of them, including the ones approved for commercial trials, retained all of the good qualities of the Perlette plus semi-sterility. Harold P. Olmo, of the University of California department of viticulture and enology, explained that the X-rays broke off pieces of the chromosomes, the rod-like carriers of genes. Then, during the process of chromosome division and recombination which results in fruit formation in another generation, some daughter cells were shortchanged on genes while others got too many. In both cases, normal fruit did not develop. In the one instance there was a looser, more desirable cluster of grapes.

Normally the change would have been sought through cross-breeding but the grape ancestry is much mixed up. As a result, cross-breeding would bring out a vast number of undesirable qualities. It was much simpler to induce mutation with X-rays. Olmo explains that this chromosome-cracking type of mutation, which scrambles genetic processes rather than neatly rearranging them, always produces some degree of sterility. But he points out this is extremely valuable in many fruits. Grapes and peaches, for instance, frequently produce crops too heavy unless they are thinned. The same process could be used, he says, for the creation of fruitless types of ornamental trees and shrubs.

The use of the X-ray on the grape buds produced one valuable new strain of fruit. It also gives a hint of what people fear as a result of a nuclear bomb war. Thousands would be killed of course and thousands of others who survive might, as the result of the rays from the bomb explosion, produce offspring with characteristics never before seen at birth. Changes might come in plants and in animals. Here there would be no one to protect the desirable offspring and to eliminate the undesirable as the scientists did with the grapebuds. Consequently it is difficult to imagine what the population of the earth would be after such warfare.

Brainwashed Communist

Janos Kadar, Communist party chief in occupied Hungary, has again taken over the position of premier following the resignation of Ferenc Muennich.

Kadar now holds the same positions in Budapest that Khrushchev does in Moscow but it was not emulation of the big boss that prompted him. Kadar wants to head any delegations to the United Nations or other international conferences. Muennich, who helped pick up the governmental pieces along with Kadar when the Russian tanks were through, is probably felt to be loyal enough. But Kadar seems to hold a special place in whatever er takes the place of Communist hearts. Once an anti-Communist socialist, he was tortured and converted. Now he is almost like a character in an Arthur Koestler novel — a despairing robot who jumps every time someone in the Kremlin jerks his particular set of strings. The Russians apparently would rather show this horrible caricature of a man to the world as typical of a Red leader than risk a representative who might have a thought or emotion of his own.

There is only one slight hope in Kadar's new job. Is there no one else in Hungary whom the Russians dare trust?

'Assaulted' Delegate To U. N. Spirited Away

From The N. Y. Herald Tribune

Guinea's sudden move to spirit United Nations delegate Michel Collet out of the country might be taken as a tacit admission that the Guinean Ambassador had told less than the truth about Mr. Collet's scuffle with police. But enough damage has been done for the case still to leave a sour taste in the mouth, and to call for a more forthright apology.

A foreign diplomat who rams a taxi, slugs the driver and then brawls with police is fully entitled to diplomatic immunity, as a legal matter, but not to sympathy. Such immunity is a necessary tradition of long standing, without which the conduct of diplomatic affairs would be subject to unconscionable hazards. But it places certain moral and practical obligations on those entitled to claim it—including a readiness on the part of each nation to discipline its own envoys when they commit gross breaches of the peace. Guinea's U. N. Ambassador Diallo Telli compounded Mr. Collet's offense with unwarranted attacks on the United States and on the New York police.

His charge that the incident "manifestly had aspects of racial discrimination" and was akin to a lynching (merely because the three men Mr. Collet fought happened to be white) itself quite manifestly had aspects of scurrilous mischief-making.

If the police had knowingly and without provocation — as Ambassador Diallo charged — beaten up an African or any other U. N. delegate, it would have been one of the most thundering cases of police misbehavior in New York history. A police investigation, upheld by both Mayor Wagner and Ambassador Stevenson, absolved the policemen involved of any misbehavior. When Mr. Collet finally identified himself, at the station house, he was immediately granted immunity and released. Yet the Afro-Asians, assembled in special conclave, listened to Mr. Diallo's patent absurdities and unblinkingly condemned the "brutal assault" on Mr. Collet, calling it the "latest in a series of incidents involving humiliation, indignity and racial discrimination against Afro-Asian

From The St. Louis Post Dispatch

The Parisian House of Dior has introduced its new line of dresses as series "Charm 62."

What provides the charm for 1962?

These creations, a Paris report says, are "figure-hugging" right down to the knee, and show only a sliver of that. The Parisian response was enthusiastic after a rather dull season, so we hope that charm marches on over here.

Figure-hugging dresses sound charming enough though, no doubt, there will be those who protest that it all depends upon whether the figure is worth hugging.

diplomats which have been occurring in recent months." Mr. Collet's case is hardly one for talk about dignity, except perhaps for a lecture on what it consists of. As for discrimination, the witnesses to the affair — all Negroes — unanimously sided with the police. If the Afro-Asians would lay their own prejudices aside long enough to look at the facts, they themselves might be first to condemn Mr. Diallo not only for abuse of diplomatic immunity, but for involving their collective dignities in a cheap and unworthy cause.

Time, Distance Erase History's Worst Disasters From Our Memory

BY CHARLES HOUSE
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

Hurricane Carla, her sister Esther, and the other members of that blowsy family have been ruinous but not quite disastrous. Ample warnings, excellent communications and wise men all had a part in keeping the toll of dead down to minimal proportions.

But the chances are that a few years hence we will have forgotten all about Carla and Esther because man's recollective system is strange indeed. I think it likely that you and I will tend to remember Hurricane Hazel of 1934 as the worst of the Hurricane disasters. Hazel was responsible for the loss of 347 lives.

Memory, though, is strangely perverse. It is odd that the best-remembered hurricane is Hazel when there have been many others which reached such proportions that all of the world wept.

One of them took place in Bengal, India only 19 years ago—and killed a shocking total of 11,000 people.

And when we turn from hurricanes and think of tornadoes, it is likely that most of us will recall one which took place in Wisconsin on June 4, 1958 and claimed 30 lives.

Flood Disasters

But that tornado was far from the worst in U.S. history. One of the twisters roared across three killed 10 people in 1959? Or the Texas City, Texas explosion of 1947 which took the lives of 561 persons?

Earthquake in China

In either case your recollection is faulty. The worst explosion in point of the loss of human lives took place in 1917 at Halifax Harbor in Canada. One thousand, six hundred people went to their death.

The history books have recorded the disasters of major proportions but we tend to recall them by their nearness to us either geographically or in time. Add "drama" to that and you have three of the reasons for mis-recollections.

What earthquake seems to be the very worst? Is it the quake of southern Chili which took place only last year and took the lives of 5,700?

If so, you've remembered wrongly. There was a grossly fatal one in China in 1956 which killed 830,000 people—and it should be remembered for the reason of the great number of dead.

Undoubtedly you will recall the sinking of the Titanic in 1912 as the most terrible of the marine disasters for much has been written of it and many world famed people were aboard when she struck an iceberg in the North Atlantic and went down with 1,517 people.

Peshigo Fire

But the sinking of the Titanic was not the worst—not by far. A French cruiser, inappropriately named the Providence, sank in the Mediterranean in 1915 with all hands. Dead 3,100.

What fire stands foremost in your mind as the worst in history—the great Chicago fire of October 1871?

Chances are, however that you know that the great forest fire of Peshtigo, Wisconsin killed hundreds more—1,152—and it must stand as the worst fire in history. It took place on the same day in the same year as the Chicago fire.

Chances are, too, that you have misremembered every great disaster in history because it was too distant from you in time or in drama.

Bears Get Smarter At Yellowstone Park

YELLOWSTONE NATIONAL PARK, Wyo. (AP)—Yellowstone National park bears are getting too smart for the tourists.

Park Superintendent L. A. Garrison said rangers are making a special effort to warn visitors about the bears this season, adding:

"They are getting so smart they can open car windows."

Garrison said the bears have found they can spring a car window open if the small wind vent window is open wide enough for them to reach in.

New Words Are Your Key to Some Tricky, Unfamiliar School Courses

BY LESLIE J. NASON, Ed.D.

Professor of Education,
University of Southern California

A new school year is beginning and with it courses that are new to you.

These courses will involve many new and unfamiliar words. How you react to these words will tell a great deal about how you will react to the new courses.

Your first impressions of the new courses will probably not be based on who is sitting in the next seat, or what time of day the classes meet, or how far you have to walk to get to them.

Your first and very important reaction will come from how well you understand what the teacher is saying.

Being introduced to strangers is always a trying experience. Often you do not remember the names of the persons with whom you have just exchanged hand-claps.

Hearing new words can be a little like this. The new words are strangers, and you don't always quite catch the names.

Two Important Principles

Easy listening depends quite firmly on two principles:

1. The more you know of the subject, the more responsive you'll be. It's like meeting old friends again.

2. You must hear separate words as they are spoken and each must bring up its own mental picture. Being able to explain the meaning of a word doesn't insure you that you will recognize it when it pops up in conversation.

Knowing who Roger Maris is doesn't mean you'd recognize him in an elevator.

By the same token, reading the material at the beginning of a new textbook is not sufficient introduction to the strange words you are encountering.

You must train your ears to hear the words and your mind to bring up the proper mental pictures.

Learn the names. Recognize the faces.

Easy Formula

There's an easy formula for this:

1. As soon as you get a copy of the text, read the introduction and the first chapter. By doing this you'll "meet" the words that are strangers to you. Find out what these words mean. Learn to get a mental picture of their meaning. When you've done this, they'll no longer be strangers.

2. Now pronounce each word repeatedly until it rolls off your tongue easily and naturally. Do this out loud. When you say a word aloud you are hearing it and getting its mental picture at the same time.

3. Now compose a sentence involving the use of the word. Read it over several times. Read it aloud at regular conversational speed.

Tape Recorder Practical

I have known students who dictated a few sentences containing new words into a tape recorder. They played back the tape once or twice daily for two weeks. The result: They had become fast friends with those new words.

The first discussions of the teacher in which he outlines the course and sets up the background for learning are too often fumbled by students. They have ears, but they hear not.

Perhaps an example of what we're talking about will prove our point.

Listening to names is easy when they can be identified: Chicago, New York, Los Angeles, Boston.

Now try: Bartoo, Tucumcari, Ottumwa.

See the difference?

(You can write Dr. Nason in care of this paper. He'll discuss questions of greatest general interest in his articles.)

Austrian Student Tells of Home Life

Christl Huber, exchange student from Innsbruck, Austria, attending Xavier High School, compared her homeland with America in a talk to the girls' department Wednesday.

She discussed school life, sports, home life, transportation, television and dress.

Reserve squad cheerleaders at Xavier are Barbara Bedford, Sara LaViolette, Mary McKenney, Nancy Dexter, Judy Mullen and Jean Weber.

The Xavier Concert Band plans the 1961-62 season with a variety of musicals, including "The Sound of Music" and "The King and I".

The band is looking for engagements.

Strange Tactics Used in Battle For Integration

'End Justifies Means' Seems to Be Strategy

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON—There's an unexplained paradox in the news these days. It raises several interesting questions:

First, why was it necessary to organize "freedom rides" to protest against racial discrimination in the South in seating on buses and at bus terminals?

Second, why did the Interstate Commerce Commission allow the interstate Commerce Commission to issue these new regulations?

Third, why were the organizers of the "freedom rides" given encouragement by government officials here to carry on those demonstrations when there was a remedy in existing law?

Fourth, why was the United States subjected to criticism abroad and the Soviet Union enabled to get a considerable propaganda use out of the news of the disorders at a time of international tension, and especially when the United States was seeking to win the friendship and favor of various African countries which now have votes in the U.N.?

The above questions relate to a belief which too many people have expressed that the only way to get things done is to "take the law into your own hands."

Not so many years ago this was the argument also of those who started mobs to do lynchings. This was widely described as "government by mob" instead of government by law and order. Indeed, when the disorders broke out at Little Rock, Ark., in the autumn of 1957, criticism was heard that the mob was "taking the law into their own hands."

But the "freedom riders" in 1961 disregarded the fears of the local clergy. They participated in the "freedom rides" in 1961.

populace that "law and order" would be disrupted and that violence might result if the demonstrations were carried to the point of actual resistance to local laws.

Even some clergymen, who are supposed to teach reconciliation and certainly are not supposed to do anything remotely to provoke violence, actually participated in the "freedom rides" without getting a single letter of reprimand from the institutions, religious or educational, with which they were associated. Does this mean that "the end justifies the means" after all?

Whether one likes the "law of the land" is irrelevant, but, since it's desirable in a democracy for the people to await the normal functioning of legal processes in one cause, it is equally desirable for the partisans of any other cause to agree that "law and order" must be given an opportunity to apply its mandates through the judicial processes available.

Playing Politics?

The Kennedy administration must have known last January that it could ask the Interstate Commerce Commission to issue regulations to cover seating on buses and terminal facilities similar to those previously issued for railroads and rail-terminal facilities. Why didn't the Department of Justice advise the Negro organizations in the beginning not to start "freedom rides" but to give the law a chance to function? There are rumors that the demonstrations were actually undertaken with the knowledge, if not the advice, of the Department of Justice. This needs to be cleared up. There is a suspicion growing that the department of justice is acting as a partisan of political causes and is playing politics with the whole problem of desegregation.

It is not explained why President Kennedy waited until the last moment in the current Congress to send to the Senate the nomination of Thurgood Marshall, general counsel for the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, to be a U.S. Circuit judge in the second circuit.

No Time for Injury

The President held up sending the nomination to the Senate so that there would be no time for any inquiry at all into Thurgood's qualifications at the present session of Congress. There now will be a recess appointment which will permit the new appointee—who has had no experience on a high judicial post and draw a $25,000-a-year salary.

This is a defiance of customary procedures. Again and again members of Congress have criticized the idea of giving recess appointments to federal judges. For what is to be thought of the rulings of such a judge made during the recess if his nomination next year fails to be confirmed? There are signs that both parties are playing politics in an effort to win the support of Negro voters. There seems to be a throwback to reconstruction days when the slogan was "might makes right."

The fourteenth amendment itself, on which the whole issue of "equal rights" is based today, was declared "ratified" in 1868—three years after the war between the states was over—by precisely such illegal methods, in disregard of the requirements of the constitution.

Families Won't be on Train With 32nd Going to Ft. Lewis

Deferments Issue Still Not Clear; Few Discharges Seen

MADISON (AP) — Wisconsin's 32nd Red Arrow Division, which gained fame in two world wars, embarks on federal service next month in an effort to help preserve a precarious peace.

The Division's 10,000 men will report to Ft. Lewis, Wash., on Oct. 29. But the division will mobilize at home duty stations in 72 Wisconsin communities Oct. 15—just 21 years to the day from the time it was called up for active duty prior to World War Two.

The division will be transported to Ft. Lewis by train and families will not accompany the guardsmen. By order of the 14th Corps commander, Maj. Gen. Frank Britton of Minneapolis, no allowances will be made to finance the cost of moving families of Wisconsin guardsmen to Ft. Lewis or housing them in the area after the division is established there.

Takes Own Equipment
A big job between now and the reporting date is the packing and loading of vehicles and equipment which will be shipped to the post on railroad flatcars. The division will take all its own equipment to Ft. Lewis.

The huge task of clearing the records of the 10,000 guardsmen for the movement is also underway.

As guardsmen started getting their personal affairs in order for leaving civilian life, the question of possible deferments was not clear.

State Adjutant Gen. Ralph Olson has conferred with National Guard Bureau officers in Washington, D. C. He said the policy would be strict and he expected the number eligible for discharge to be few.

For the several hundred students involved, the one clear ruling is that unless the individual is a graduate student in an essential science he probably won't be deferred.

The adjutant general emphasized that the division's call to active duty was made on the basis of the training rating the division has as it now stands.

"We would be less than realistic to take away members of the division who have helped build this rating into the very fine record it is," Olson said. "If we did, the Army would not get the division it expects."

Those who want consideration of a deferment must notify their unit commander, who will pass the request through channels to Olson's office where a special screening board will consider each case.

Legal Protection
Guardsmen leaving home to serve will have the legal protection of the Soldiers' and Sailors' Civil Relief Act which was in force during World War Two and the Korean conflict.

The State Bar of Wisconsin said Friday that the 1940 act of Congress has been extended by the Universal Military Training Act and is effective in state courts.

The purpose of the act is to suspend the enforcement of legal rights against members of the armed forces by persons with whom the servicemen entered into legally binding agreements.

Courts may postpone legal action against a serviceman for the duration of his service, plus three months. There is an interest limitation of six per cent on prior debts, unless the court finds that military service doesn't materially alter ability to pay a higher interest rate.

Dependents of servicemen are protected against immediate eviction from rented premises provided the rent is $80 per month or less. Such actions may be delayed for three months by a court.

If the serviceman has made a deposit or paid an installment on the purchase price of a home before entering service, any move to rescind the transaction and refund the purchase price to the serviceman must receive court approval. The court may delay the transaction until the serviceman returns from duty.

Other provisions relate to sales of personal property, purchases on installment, termination of business leases, foreclosure of liens on household goods in storage and postponement of payments of taxes and special assessments.

Rated one of the top National Guard divisions in the country, the Red Arrow Division is below its designated strength of 13,000.

A stepped-up recruiting policy designed to help add to the unit's strength ends Monday. After that, enlistments will be closed and army corps headquarters in Minneapolis will be charged with the job of putting the 32nd Division at full strength with men drawn from various army reserve pools.

The Ft. Lewis post is the nation's second largest military reservation and is midway between Olympia and Tacoma, Ft. Lewis includes the 267,000 acre Yakima firing center east of the Cascade Mountains.

The 32nd Division is expected to replace regular army units for possible use in Europe to beef up armed strength there during the Berlin crisis.

State Military Academy Speeds Officer Training

MADISON (AP) — The Wisconsin Military Academy has speeded up training of 80 officer candidates so they may be graduated in time to serve with Wisconsin's 32nd Division when it is mobilized next month.

The 32nd will go on active duty Oct. 15, and Capt. Donald Whitwam, academy commander, said Friday that the candidates should be graduated and commissioned 2nd lieutenant infantry officers by that time. Classes have been put on an eight-hour day schedule.

The candidates have been working for commissions on a voluntary, part time basis, but Adjutant Gen. Ralph Olson said Friday the men would report to the academy here Wednesday on an active duty basis.

Under a normal schedule, the men would have completed their course next summer. The academy is run by Whitwam and a staff of 23 officers.

Kennedy Challenges Reds to 'Peace Race'

Nuclear Ban Proposal

Kennedy touched on world trouble spots and solutions to the causes of cold war conflict in his first appearance before the General Assembly.

In his prepared text he was most specific about halting the spread of atomic weapons. He said the new U.S. disarmament program, which may be set forth in detail within 24 hours, would include a proposal for all nations to sign a nuclear test ban treaty.

"Test ban negotiations need not and should not await general disarmament talks," Kennedy said in a discussion of a nuclear treaty he wrapped into over-all disarmament negotiations.

U. N. Peace Forces

Kennedy advocated a special U.N. power to keep the peace throughout the world. He recommended that all member nations earmark special peace-keeping units in their armed forces to be on call to prevent aggression.

Kennedy pointed directly to threats of peace in Laos and in Germany.

For the first time he personally emphasized that in connection with a Soviet-East German pact that "the Western allies are not concerned with any paper arrangement the Soviets wish to make with a regime of their own creation, on territory occupied by their own troops and governed by their own agents."

But to make the United States' position clear, he asserted: "No such action can affect either our rights or our responsibilities."

Can't Surrender Freedom

He said the Western powers cannot surrender the freedom of West Berlin or their commitments in Germany.

"A 'peace treaty' which would destroy the peace would be a fraud," he said. "A 'free city' which would suffocate freedom would be an infamy."

The Western Allies "have calmly resolved to defend, by whatever means are forced upon them, their obligations and their access to the free citizens of West Berlin and the self-determination of those citizens," Kennedy said.

UNITED NATIONS — Kennedy

"Firmness and reason," rather than brandishing or yielding to threats, can lead to a peaceful solution, he said. Kennedy held out hope for peaceful solution to the 93 nations represented in the United Nations who have grown alarmed at the hazardous situation in divided Berlin.

He said troops and tanks can for a time divide a nation against its will.

Agreement Possible

"But we believe a peaceful agreement is possible which protects the freedom of West Berlin and Allied presence and access, while recognizing the historic and legitimate interests of others in assuring European security."

Events of the next 10 months may well decide man's fate for the next 100 years, Kennedy declared. He pledged every effort to spare future generations the scourge of war.

"I pledge you that we shall neither commit nor provoke aggression—that we shall neither use nor threaten the threat of force—that we shall never negotiate out of fear and never fear to negotiate," he said.

Independent Nations

To the noncommitted nations which make up nearly half the U.N. membership, Kennedy said "a worldwide declaration of independence has transferred nearly a billion people and nine million square miles into 42 independent states since World War I. In response to their protests against Western colonialism, he said less than 2 per cent of the world's population now lives under such rule.

The United States intends to be a participant and not merely an observer in the movement of nations from colonial to equal status, Kennedy said. He added, referring directly to the Soviets, that "there is no ignoring the fact that the tide of self-determination has torn down the Communist empire."

Wants Inspection

Kennedy said the U.S. program Nyeri. "We want unity and freedom for disarmament would proceed from. We don't want to steal land through violence and safeguarded or farms from the Europeans."

stages designed to prevent one country from gaining military advantage over another.

"It would place the final responsibility for verification and control where it belongs—not with the big powers alone, not with one's adversary or one's self—but in an international organization within the framework of the United Nations itself," Kennedy said.

He announced that the program would provide for true inspection, which he called an indispensable condition of disarmament.

Under the eye of an international disarmament organization, Kennedy said, the program would achieve a steady reduction in nuclear and conventional forces "until it has abolished all armies and all weapons except those needed for internal order and a new United Nations peace force."

Kennedy proposed a prompt resumption of disarmament negotiations which would continue without pause until complete and general disarmament has not only been agreed upon but actually achieved.

and 2 engines torn off and its nose damaged, stopped in five or six feet of water. Four stewardesses led the passengers out on the wings.

Taken to the hospitals were Charles Ivsac, 38, Kenosha, Wis.; Lillian Rocheleau, 51, Westboro, Mass., and a stewardess, Sheila Homan of Lowell, Mass., and Burlington, Calif.

Two Wisconsin men were aboard the American Airlines Astrojet 707 that touched down, slid off a runway and landed at the water edge of a mudflat in Boston Harbor Sunday.

Edgar L. Obama, a Dodgeville photographer, was not hurt. Charles Ivsac, 38, Kenosha, was treated for rib injuries at Boston City Hospital and released.

In addition to Ivsac, two other persons among the 63 passengers and crew of the plane were treated for injuries termed "non-serious."

Obama's wife, Betty said at Dodgeville Sunday that her husband was not originally scheduled to fly on the plane that crashed.

He was en route to Boston to address the New England Photographic Society. He started at Madison Saturday but was grounded for a while in Chicago.

He told his wife by phone that he was rescued by a member of the Boston Yacht Club and was not injured.

Ivsac's mother, Mrs. Lewis A. Ivsac, said that he had flown east to visit a friend, and called her after the crash to assure her he was not seriously injured.

In addition to the 63 passengers and crew of the plane also carried the body of William F. Richardson Jr. of San Francisco, being shipped to Northampton, Mass., for burial.

Most of the rescued were brought to the Orient Heights Yacht Club. It was during one such boat trip that Jack Luti, about 50, of Beachmont, suffered his fatal heart attack.

Susan Sherill, 19, of Highland Park, Ill., a student returning to school in Boston, said Luti collapsed in his boat as it approached the yacht club.

'No Violence' Says Ex-Mau-Mau Leader

Nairobi, Kenya (AP) — Jomo Kenyatta, who was imprisoned for nine years for leading the Mau Mau anti-white terrorists, says he has not reached the Communist empire.

"There is no real freedom when there is violence," he told a rally of 120,000 followers Sunday at Nairobi.

Kennedy said the U.S. program Nyeri. "We want unity and freedom for disarmament would proceed from. We don't want to steal land through violence and safeguarded or farms from the Europeans."

Seventy-One Persons aboard an American Airlines 707 jet plane were rescued after the plane, inbound from San Francisco, overshot a runway at Boston's Logan International Airport Sunday and nosed into a mudflat. There was no loss of life or serious injuries. Rescue workers are shown on the plane's wing.

U. N. Guessed Wrong On Tshombe's Support

were lost through the total absence of the element of surprise. The move was openly discussed in the Leopoldville parliament several days before it took place.

Some crucial messages were radioed in the clear and the only question in Elisabethville was not if the U.N. would attempt a coup but the exact hour when the attack would take place.

White Officers Return

Katanga Gen. Masaxo Norbert Muke had ample opportunity to deploy his forces, bring up supplies and call his white officers out of hiding.

According to O'Brien about 250 whites, or half of those serving in the Katanga forces, escaped arrest in sweeps which took place three weeks ago. Other sources, however, set the number of whites now serving with Katanga units at 150, including 60 who arrived after the fighting began.

The escape of Tshombe and strongman Interior Minister Godefroid Munongo dashed U.N. hopes for a quick and easy victory.

Without Tshombe and Munongo resistance would soon have collapsed.

The military operation showed greater attention to textbook military science than to the realities of the local situation.

Initial objectives, all of which fell to the U.N., were the post office, Elisabethville airport and three radio stations.

Border Not Sealed

This selection of objectives reveals an orthodox preoccupation with communications. Possession of the three radio stations and the airport was useless unless the U.N. could seal the Rhodesian border to prevent the flow of press reports that raised considerable international sympathy for Tshombe and to insure that no alternative means of radio transmission were available to the Katanga government.

Neither of these prerequisites was achieved. Despite closure of the Elisabethville airport, correspondents soon filtered into Katanga by road and managed to get their copy out by one means or another.

A clandestine station, Radio Free Katanga, was on the air within hours exhorting Katangans to fight to the last man in the struggle for national liberation.

Physical control of the airfield meant nothing unless the U.N. was able to extend its perimeter around the strip far enough to allow it to be used. This the U.N. lacked troops to do.

Airfield Almost Closed

Soon after the fighting began, harassing ground fire caused closure of the airfield to all but occasional night traffic. It was ground fire from around Elisabethville airport which knocked out two of four engines of Hammar's DC-6B as it took off for Leopoldville.

The fundamental mistake was in undertaking the operation at all with no air support whatsoever, although it was known that Katanga had at least one Fouga jet trainer. This was done, of course, because the U.N. felt there would be little or no resistance and that Tshombe's government would topple before the Fouga could get airborne.

If the initial stages of the battle of Katanga, that ended when the cease fire became effective, there any reason why the column had a hero from the Katanga viewpoint, it must be the Rhodanese Fouga pilot. All the strings of victory and the present cease fire must be termed victory for Tshombe's lead back to this cocky little lightly-armed trainer.

The Fouga, together with ground fire, closed the Elisabethville airport and prevented all reinforcements from reaching the U.N. commander, Brigadier K. A. S. Raja of India.

Forced Plane's Detour

The little plane destroyed a DC-4 on the ground at Elisabethville and is said to have caused Hammar's plane to take a long detour which may have been a contributory factor in his death.

The effect of Hammar's death on the Katanga fight is difficult to assess, but it seems likely that it would hearten the primitive Katangans, who regarded him as enemy number one. Leaders like Tshombe, of course, are sophisticated enough to realize that this was not the case.

O'Brien credits "this wretched little Fouga" with preventing a relief column from reaching Katanga where 160 Irish eventually surrendered to besieging gendarmes and gave Katanga its great military victory. If so this re-taken presumption that resistance would collapse before counterattacks could be mounted.

Infantry should certainly be able to advance against air attack from one small plane. Nor is Gurkhas and Swedes fought well at O'Brien's headquarters.

They were obviously psychological whites and Africans regard America as a prime mover in the at-tempt to crush their aspirations for independence.

en's headquarters. Although no body was hurt, the jovial Irishman was forced to dive in rather unceremonious fashion into a slit trench.

Lastly the U.N. made an error in failing to concentrate its forces. This resulted in the fall of Jadotville, retreat from most of the vast Kamina base, and evacuation under fire of U.N. forces from Elisabethville's Lido hotel.

Radio Free Katanga milked every ounce of propaganda from these victories.

O'Brien states that the Irish troops were sent to Jadotville against the advice of his military staff on urging of the Elisabethville consular corps and white residents of Jadotville. The latter then proceeded, so O'Brien says, to incite the Katanga gendarmery against the Irish.

Garrison Too Small

The Kamina garrison was clearly too small to hold the 100-square-mile base and the presumption that this was not the case.

O'Brien credits "this wretched little Fouga" with preventing a relief column from reaching Katanga where 160 Irish eventually surrendered to besieging gendarmes and gave Katanga its great military victory. If so this re-taken presumption that resistance would collapse before counterattacks could be mounted.

Kennedy Covers Wide Range Of Topics in U.N. Speech

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Highlights of President Kennedy's speech to the U.N. General Assembly today:

SECRETARY-GENERAL Dag Hammarskjold's death — "His tragedy is deep in our hearts, but the task for which he died is at the top of our agenda. The problem is not the death of one man — the problem is the life of this organization."

SUCCESSOR TO HAMMARSKJOLD — "Our dedication to that (U.N.) charter must be strengthened by the selection of an outstanding civil servant to carry forward the responsibilities of our Secretary-general — a man endowed with both the wisdom and the power to make meaningful the moral force of the world community."

THE TROIKA — "To install a triumvirate, or any panel or rotating authority, in the U.N. administrative offices would replace order with anarchy, action with paralysis, and confidence with gross confusion. To give this organization three drivers — to permit each great power in effect to decide its own case — would entrench the cold war in the headquarters of peace."

ARMS RACE — "It is therefore our intention to challenge the Soviet Union, not to an arms race, but to a peace race — to advance with us step by step."

It became obvious that no quick victory was to be had and that world opinion was by no means unanimously in support of the U.N. actions. The Irish had little heart for the battle.

Blow to U.S. Influence — That is the tale of the U.N.'s abortive campaign.

A sorry factor from American point of view is that the United States is so closely implicated with U.N. in Katanga that victory for Tshombe would mean total eclipse of American influence in the region.

Katangans have long believed that the U.N. and the United States are synonymous. The present situation in Elisabethville has worked on the optimistic and misled the U.N. again doing nothing to change this view.

The American consulate is guarded by Gurkhas, hated by the Katangans. Consul William Canup has not ventured into the center of the city since fighting began and has been a daily visitor to O'Brien's headquarters.

Double Talk Isn't Wrong, It's Essential

BY HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP)—How good are you at double talk?
You may think you don't use double talk at all. But you do—probably many times every day. To double talk merely means to say one thing when you actually mean something else.

Double talk is by no means confined to the realm of politics and international diplomacy. It is equally popular in business, marriage and the day-to-day diplomacy of ordinary social life. It is not only popular; it is essential. Otherwise, if we told the exact truth in all situations, we'd be at each other's throats in no time—and society would explode in chaos.
For double talk is both the rich, and crazy if he's poor. Here is a partial glossary of the more double talk, the double talk phrases—and what

Republican Jack Olson May Seek Second Spot on State Ticket

By JOHN WYNGAARD

Post-Crescent Staff Writer

MADISON — Informed Republican politicians are saying that Jack Olson of Wisconsin Dells, who has been preparing for a gubernatorial candidacy for three years, may change his plans and seek the second spot on the Republican state ticket next year.

Olson is said to be willing to run for lieutenant governor on a ticket headed by Warren P. Knowles of New Richmond, the present lieutenant governor.

If the Republican convention endorses Philip Kuehn, the Milwaukee businessman who was the GOP nominee two years ago, Olson will challenge him in the primary, according to this reliable account.

able if the convention wants to endorse him, but he has said nothing to guide the politicians who are increasingly thinking about their ticket composition problem.

Sen. Alexander Wiley has told at least one prominent Wisconsin visitor lately that he regrets the prospect that he won't have another primary fight when he seeks renomination and re-election next year. Wiley has several times fought off organization "regular" challengers in such a fashion that he has excited Democratic and liberal sympathies and the Democrats found it hard to make their own general election campaign against him as a consequence.

Wisconsin politicians in Washington are watching developments in the volatile Wisconsin state tax controversy as carefully as those who are stationed on the home ground.

Congressmen and senators are aware that the fortunes of both political parties are involved in the outcome, especially if it is not satisfactorily resolved, and that as their parties are weakened or strengthened in public relations their own political fortunes and their own next campaigns will be affected.

Several Republican congressmen are consulting regularly with Republican legislative leaders on the tactics and strategy of the competition with the Democratic state administration on the tax policy question.

It sounds extravagant, but the idea of Sen. William Proxmire as a candidate for the governorship of Wisconsin in the event that Gov. Nelson runs for the U. S. senate next year is being kicked around by more politicians, including those whose judgment is generally sound.

Wisconsin Campaigns They point to the senator's extraordinarily active campaign of speech-making — four years before the expiration of his senate term — and such exploits as hand-shaking through the grandstands at athletic contests in Milwaukee and other places.

The Democratic national committee has notified local party units of the campaigning assignments of Democratic senators in the states that will have senatorial elections next year, including Wisconsin.

Among those who will be assigned to aid the Democratic nominee to capture the seat now held by Republican Sen. Wiley are Sen.

Pastore of Rhode Island and Sen. Maurice Neuberger of Oregon, the widow of the former senator of that state who was elected in her own right when Sen. Richard Neuberger died.

"Where Am I?" Sen. Proxmire, besides being assigned to Wisconsin speech dates in the senatorial campaign, has been marked down for stumping on behalf of the Democratic senatorial nominee in North Carolina in 1962.

Sometimes the little things in government illuminate changes that have taken place so gradually that they have escaped general notice.

Thus a University of Wisconsin press release recently related matter-of-factly that it has published a pocket-sized map of its campus, for the convenience of the larger throngs of students now populating it. It is not easy for earlier generations of Badgers to appreciate that new students may now conceivably become lost in the huge expanse of buildings and grounds or how the physical plant of the school has proliferated since the war.

Women of All Saints' Prepare For 15th Annual Lecture Series

The 15th annual Lecture Series by faculty members of Lawrence College, sponsored by the women of All Saints' Episcopal Church, will begin at 10 a. m. Thursday in the main hall of the parish center of the church.

The hour-long lectures will be on six consecutive Thursday mornings, ending Nov. 1. Pre-school children will be cared for and entertained during the lectures in the nursery room at the parish center.

Community Project
The idea for this series grew out of a friendly conversation between two Appleton women waiting for their husband who were attending a Vestry meeting at All Saints. The women, Mrs. Asher R. Ellis and Mrs. Nathan M. Pusey, were interested in a project which would give the women of Appleton a chance to hear faculty members speak on their specialties. None of them dreamed that night of how well received the idea would be, but on Thursday of this week the 15th annual series will begin.

Opening Lecture
The opening lecture of the current series will be "Remarks on Some Post-Impressionist Paintings" by Lawrence D. Steffel Jr., assistant professor of art. After this opening session coffee will be served to all the women attending.

On Oct. 5, Elizabeth Forter, associate professor of English, will discuss "Shaw and Comedy: Convention and Revolt." On Oct. 12, Norman W. Taylor, assistant professor of economics and a native of Great Britain, will speak on Nationalization and the Welfare State in Britain.

"Does God Play Dice with the Universe?" will be the subject Oct. 19. The speaker will be J. Bruce Brackenridge, assistant professor of physics. LaVahn Maesch, director of Lawrence Conservatory and professor of music, who has been in Russia, will speak on "Thoughts on Russia, Music and Education." Bruce Cronmiller, assistant professor of French, who spent a year studying abroad, will talk on experiences he and his family encountered. The title of his topic is "France, Meanwhile, Back at the Chateau."

First Series
The first year only two professors spoke, Charles M. Brooks on art, and Warren Beck on literature. They each gave two or three lectures. An average of 60 women attended the first meetings and many parishioners were called upon to work out details of handling the project. Among those first planners were Mmes. Robert K. Wolter, Ray Peterson, John Bonini, Andrew G. Sharp, Johannes Van den Akker, Donald Purdy, Karl Stansbury, Kenneth K. DuVall, Charles Lingelbach and Mrs. Pusey and Mrs. Ellis.

Held in Basement
The Rev. Robert Reister was rector of the Episcopal Church during the early years of the series, held in the basement Guild Hall of All Saints. On Nov. 30, 1949, the church was completely gutted by fire. Services were moved temporarily into the Masonic Temple but the next fall there was no place for the Lecture Series to open. Undaunted, the women set up a lectern and 100 chairs in the Pusey's living room and proceeded as usual. The newly-built art center on the campus was used for the art lectures at this time.

Throughout the 15 years there have been dozens of professors on the series, and several have lectured many times over the years. The women planning the programs work for a balance of subject material so that all tastes may be served.

Subjects Vary
Subjects discussed have ranged from history, philosophy and literature to astronomy, modern medical advances and jazz.

Season tickets for the series as well as single lecture tickets are available at Fellings Pharmacy. All Saints' Episcopal Church office and from committee members.

Mrs. J. M. Stringham, chairman, is being assisted by Mmes. Charles Buchanan, C. B. Sitterson, James Ming, A. G. Sharp, Lois Meade, Herbert F. Hackworthy, E. Howard Grupe, James D. Cowan, Donald Purdy, William M. McGraw, Chandler W. Rowe, Karl E. Stansbury, Talbot Peterson, Ray Peterson and Robert K. Wolter.

Make-Up for Magenta

Among the bright fall shades, pink lipstick and emerald shadow. What a dazzler it is, too!

Put aside your grooming doubts and worries! Send today for "YOUR GROOMING—A to Z," a booklet that covers every step in achieving smooth looks. It tells how to manicure and pedicure, use deodorants and depilatories, bathe for beauty, tend feet, hands, teeth and eyes, polish skin and hair, care for clothes, apply perfume, overcome personal posers. To obtain your copy, write me in care of this newspaper, enclosing a large, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 20 cents in coin.

In the first place, no other color demands greater perfection in one's grooming. That's because magenta functions like a spotlight to pick up flaws. Straggly hair, for instance, comes into the sharpest focus.

The flattery of the shade also depends on the shades of cosmetics worn with it. What they should be is determined by your individual skin coloring.

Is your skin brunet — creamy to olive? If so, your foundation and powder should bear the underlying tone of your skin, and then be well laced with pink. The lipstick for you is a clear, strong red.

Is your skin fair — on the alabaster or pink side? Then your becoming selections are a foundation that matches your skin and a non-chromatic (colorless or close to colorless) powder. Such powders play up fairness, and in this instance the effect is a vital beauty consideration. For more of the same, wear a rose-pink lipstick.

What about eye cosmetics? Sea-green shadow for brown eyes, sky-blue for light ones.

To the above advices, there is an exception — the red-haired lovely. She should forego magenta in favor of a deeper shade, like black cherry. Then she would wear a creamy base, a coral-pink lipstick and emerald shadow. Put aside your grooming doubts and worries! Send today for "YOUR GROOMING—A to Z," a booklet that covers every step in achieving smooth looks. Cement Not Needed For Walks

BY ROGER C. WHITMAN
BRICK WALK

Q: Some time ago you had an item for laying a brick walk without having to mix concrete for it. Could you repeat this? I find I mislaid the issue in which it appeared.

A: The following method of putting brick down in sand has been found highly satisfactory: Excavate the walk area about 8"-12" deep and fill with clean sand nearly to the top. Put down the bricks in the desired pattern. Then pour dry cement in the spaces between bricks, level with the surface and sweep off any excess. Set a garden sprinkler to finest mist and let it play over the bricks for several hours. The cement will automatically be activated and be soaked into the sand foundation. Keep the area damp for at least a week so that the concrete cures slowly.

MINIATURE LOUVERS

Q: Where can we purchase the small, round, miniature louvers? We have a roof overhang that becomes quite damp and we want to install the louvers to provide better ventilation in this area.

A: Building supplies dealers and large hardware stores usually have these, or can get them for you. These little louvers do a very good job.

ADDITIONAL TOWEL BARS

Q: We need additional towel bars in the bathroom. Is it necessary to cut out parts of the ceramic tile walls to put up the brackets?

A: No. Adhesive-backed towel bars are widely available in hardware and variety stores; these are attached to the tile surface, following manufacturer's directions carefully. Or a special cement is available, or an epoxy-type adhesive can be used, for the same purpose.

For screwed-on brackets: Drill a hole with a carbide-tipped drill. Place a fiber plug in the hole and drive the screw into that.

Writer Thinks She Has Secret For Determining Sex of Baby

BY ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Recently a woman wrote to you and complained because her mother-in-law kept nagging her to have a little girl. She said she had three boys and didn't want a fourth. She also said if someone would guarantee her that the next child would be a girl she'd go.

Your life acting as a buffer between a tyrannical father and a long-suffering mother. She has probably learned to accommodate to his personality better than you think. I hope you will move out of the house before your doctor tells you to move into a hospital.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: We are strictly mind-your-own business folks but something has happened which we feel may warrant a change of policy. The next-door neighbors are lovely people and we are on excellent terms. The parents went on a three-week's vacation and took the two younger children with them. They left their 18-year-old son at home.

He has been entertaining a 27-year-old trollop whose reputation is well known in this town. We've seen them coming and going at odd hours. My wife thinks we should tell the parents when they return. The boy has had one year of college but apparently he still doesn't know much about life. My husband says it's none of our business. I say I'd appreciate it if someone made an effort to save our 18-year-old son if he were in this kind of danger. Who is right?—Concerned

Dear Concerned: Your husband. You can't save an 18-year-old boy from a 27-year-old trollop — especially if he doesn't want to be saved. This boy's pattern of behavior was established long before his parents left town. Say nothing and concentrate on your own son. If alcohol is robbing you or someone you love of health and dignity, send for Ann Landers' booklet, "Help For The Alcoholic," enclosing with your request 20 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope. Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope. (Copyright 1961)

Partner Can Be Clued on Suit Switch

In certain situations it is possible to signal with a follow-suit play so as to direct your partner to a particular suit. West wins the first trick with the king of spades and must switch to the right suit to defeat South's game contract. If West tries to mark time by leading a trump, South will draw trumps and use the clubs to discard a diamond from dummy. West cannot afford to lead another spade since East's raise must be based on four spades, leaving only a singleton spade in the South hand. Similarly, East sees that West's spade overall is based on a five-card suit; so that East likewise knows that South has only a singleton in spades.

Switch Is Certain In short, both defenders know that West cannot afford to lead a second spade. A switch to a new suit is absolutely certain.

In this unusual situation East can indicate which switch he can support. By playing a low spade East would fall for a switch to the lower of the two side suits; but by playing a high spade East would direct a switch to the higher side suit.

In this case East wants a shift to diamonds. Hence he plays the jack of spades at the first trick; West leads the higher side suit, diamonds, and the defenders get two diamonds, one club and one spade to defeat the contract.

One word of caution: Don't try to use this type of signal very often. Except in very rare situations, a high card tells partner to continue the suit he has led. Use the suit preference signal only when it is obvious to both partners that a switch is certain.

Daily Question

Partner opens with one spade and the next player passes. You can hold: S—6, H—A Q 10 9 3, D—A 7 4, C—A Q J 10. What you do you say? Answer: Bid two hearts. The hand would be worth a jump response if partner had opened in any suit but spades. Avoid an immediate jump response when you have either a good fit for partner's suit nor a solid suit of your own. Our Children

Fire Hazard Must Be Taught Children

BY ANGELO PATRI

The love of fire seems to be inherent in the human race. Most of us at some time in our lives longed to camp in the woods; the high point of the experience was the evening campfire and the delight in laying it higher and higher. The fact that we needed it to cook the evening meal was quite a secondary matter. The fire was the thing, when we built a house of our own, we put in an open fireplace if it were at all possible; it was neither for heat nor for cooking meals that we wanted it. It was, and is, for the pure joy of watching it glow, flame and crackle, as we sit idly by, dreaming before it.

Is it then such a wonder that children love fire? That they will steal matches and make a fire when they get the chance? Even the very young ones, who never, in their brief lives, have seen an open fire, will try to make one if they are not watched. But watched they must be. All matches must be kept out of sight and reach, lest these unknowing ones get at them and endanger their lives and the lives of others.

Answer is Watchfulness Some children are more inclined to start fires than others; for these, we must avoid the slightest suggestion of fire. We try not to let them see dead matches or a heap of inflammables, lest such trivia suggest making a fire.

What to do with such children beyond keeping matches and lighted candles beyond their reach, must depend on the child's nature and his environment. What works with one may not work with another. Punishment or lecturing rarely helps. Watchfulness and prompt action when the child is discovered in the act is about all one can do. Sometimes it helps if a child is allowed to light a fire, he has been helped to lay, while his mother or father stands by explaining why his or her presence is necessary. Then he is shown how to put out the fire and told why one must be so careful about it.

When the child is old enough to join the Scouts, Campfire Girls or any outdoor group as well organized and led as these, he gets an opportunity to learn more about fires, their dangers and essential precautions against their devastating power. This sort of training is most helpful. It is likely to take hold and set a feeling of great responsibility for the whole idea, because it is a group responsibility and not just something imposed by a parent. Parents are likely to be looked upon as tyrants and spoilsports, whereas a group leader, speaking to the whole gang, is accepted. In time they learn. Meantime we must watch.

From Plain to Pattern

After a room spends years in plain colors, choosing pattern for it seems quite a plunge. It needn't be. Pattern to make refreshing changes isn't necessarily bold, and some of the most fashionable ways to create pattern effects for top-plain rooms involve nothing that comes by the yard or by the roll. If pattern comes into the room with fabrics, they can be simple and closely related in color to avoid stirring up the room too suddenly. The stores are full of pattern which speaks up but gently, in fabrics and in floor coverings and wallpaper. A wallpaper alone makes a surrounding change although nothing else changes. Trimmings return to add pattern to plain fabrics on the furniture and the windows. But accessorizing a plain room also adds pattern. Walls are patterned by pictures and by increasingly popular and varied wall decorations. Eye-catching are objects, plants, decorative light fixtures, grillwork and even fancifully shaped furniture—all of these have the enlivening effect of pattern against listless backgrounds.

Mrs. E. A.: "The cabinets and woodwork in my big kitchen are beige, and wallpaper on the upper walls has black, brown and pink figures on a beige background. The lower walls are tile in light brown trimmed with dark brown. The floor is in shades of brown with gold and silver spatter. Black wrought iron chairs have hot pink upholstery, and curtains are pink and brown. What change of wallpaper and curtains would enliven the scheme?" The exchange of some beige and brown for white would brighten the room. Choose a wallpaper in white with white and dashes of hot pink, and make the curtains white with sparing pink and black trim.

No Sales Tax Compromise, Democrats Advise Nelson

Governor Under Pressure From Party to Resist Republican Legislators

BY JOHN WYNGAARD

Post-Crescent Staff Writer

MILWAUKEE — Gov. Gaylord Nelson is under enormous pressure from powerful elements of his political party which resist any compromise with the ruling Republican legislative majority in the sales tax issue.

The unrelenting push from party organization politicians and affiliated groups such as organized labor was plainly visible here during the weekend as the governor laid the groundwork for his 1962 campaign — whether for governor or for U.S. Senator — a fund-raising banquet arranged by his principal Milwaukee associates and friends.

As his backers contributed what may be about $25,000 as a start for his 1962 war chest, they scarcely bothered to disguise their demands on tax policy.

Would Hike Income Tax

They want higher income taxes to raise money for the state deficit and are no more reconciled to a sales tax, even with liberal exemptions, than they were when they fought the Republicans in the historic struggle in the legislature earlier this year. The first words spoken from the Nelson banquet table by the toastmaster were "thanks" for the Democratic governor's veto of the Republican sales tax bill with its property tax revision features.

The speaker was Ray Taylor, a power in Milwaukee labor politics as the long-time editor of the Milwaukee Labor Press, organ of the central labor body in the metropolis. Nelson, who has refused to comment directly on the possibility of his compromise on a sales tax, permitted the sally to pass without a response when he arose to speak.

Meanwhile party leaders were explicit in their wishes.

Sees Long Session

Sen. William Moser, the Democratic senate minority leader who fought the sales tax in bitter hours of filibustering debate, predicted that however long the Oct. 30 session of the legislature may last, the outcome will be a high-income tax schedule on individuals similar to that proposed by the governor in his original "tax revision" bill early in the year.

Walter Thoresen of LaCrosse, a teacher who is chairman of the statement of principles committee for the state party convention in October, said he could not be sure what the convention would say on taxation but that he will propose that it maintain its traditional opposition to the sales tax in any form and for any purpose.

If the convention adopts such a statement, it seems scarcely possible that the Democratic governor on the eve of a new campaign year will be able to defy it and work out a compromise with the Republicans on any terms remotely satisfactory to the latter.

Income Tax Increases

If the governor insists, the Republicans will probably be required to go along on another round of income tax increases, in order to avoid chaos in the state treasury financing and an indefinite stalemate of the legislative session.

But it has become clear that they will insist that Nelson specifically propose such a measure as his way out of the financial dilemma that faces the state.

Then the 1962 campaign can be fought on a clearcut issue of tax revision, they feel with the record bearing out their claim that they tried to achieve it, and that the governor in spite of his espousal of the tax revision cause three years ago and in two successive political campaigns actually frustrated the plan.

The ceremony is open to anyone interested. The church site is one block east and one half block north of the present eastern end of College Avenue.

Warden, Guide to Bait Trap to Identify Strange Animal at Ogdensburg

Tales Lack Consistency Waupaca Pair Says; Cries Continue

OGDENSBURG — The strange consistent, Oatman said. One of animals with loud voices, which the stories led to two hunters who have been classified in the cougar were supposed to have seen the size, may turn out to be a bobcat animals. The two hunters, however, Rex Oatman, county conservation warden, said today, them, but did not see them. The hunters said the animals howled and hissed at them but stayed under cover.

The reports that the animals sounded like kittens in the spring have led hunters in the area to believe that there is a family. The cries, heard by nearby farmers, have become increasingly loud as the summer progressed.

While Wayne Larsen first heard the cat in 1958 when it was supposed to have stalked him when he was walking out to the pasture, other reports of hearing the animal go back to five or six years ago.

Won't Rule Out

The fact that cougars have never been known to be in this area has not dispelled the possibility that such animals exist here. Hunters who are familiar with all of the native animals are bewildered and concerned. Evidence that large cats exist is unfounded because no bodies of deer or other large animals have been found.

First Sunday Edition Rolls

Third 'Great Moment' Has All the Glamor of Earlier Newspaper Firsts

The glamor of printer's ink and the excitement of publishing a newspaper first is not dead.

History repeated itself for the third time for the 108-year-old Appleton Post-Crescent at 12:18 a.m. Sunday when the newspaper's first Sunday edition began rolling off the presses.

The scene for all three occasions was at the same time similar, yet different since the events are divided by the great span of years.

The first occurred at 8 p.m. on that long-ago night of Feb. 10, 1853, when lights streamed from a small, noisy print shop on what is today's Soldier's Square. The shop was filled with villagers, so many that they spilled out into the dirt street. They talked as they waited.

When Crescent Editor Sam Ryan Jr. strode forward from the cumbersome Washington hand press in the back of the shop, the people broke into a cheer as they reached for Appleton's first newspaper, the weekly Appleton Crescent.

The second big moment was at about 4 p.m. Feb. 2, 1920, in the press room of the old Post-Crescent building at 123 S. Appleton St. A web-fed Goss-Cornet flat bed press began turning out the first copies of the Appleton Post-Crescent, merged a few weeks earlier from the former Daily Post and Evening Crescent.

Gathered round the flat bed press (that was capable of turning out an eight-page paper were the workers, editors and other executives. John K. Kline, Green Bay, was editor in those days, the late John R. Riedl was city editor in charge of the editorial department, and present Business Manager M. E. Cartier then was mechanical department superintendent.

Gathered in the modern press room of the present Post-Crescent plant at midnight Saturday were many more editors and company executives, representing an expanded, larger newspaper firm. They waited, along with editorial staff members and composing room workers whose office and shop already were darkened, for the magic moment of press time.

On hand were Editor V. I. Minahan, Business Manager Cartier, Managing Editor Gordon R. McIntyre, Sunday Editor Jay Joslyn, Director of Sales Glenn H. Arthur, Classified Advertising Manager M. R. Parsons — conspicuous by his absence was News Editor E. L. Bisels, one of the executives who had a key role in the planning of the Sunday edition. He was at home because of illness.

Eugene Mueller, superintendent of the press-stereotype department, had his crew ready on the two floors of the press room. The page plates were positioned in the high-speed, six-unit Goss Headliner press, everything ready to roll.

Institute Adds Appleton Man to Biology Staff

The Institute of Paper Chemistry has announced the appointment of Martin C. Mathes, Ph.D., to its faculty in the biology department.

Mathes was appointed to the Institute's staff in July as a research aide in the biology group. His work will be in the area of forest genetics.

He received his B.A. from Michigan University. He was a graduate teaching assistant in botany and plant physiology at the University of Maryland, from which he received his M.S. degree in 1959 and his Ph.D. degree in 1961.

Mathes is married and has a daughter. The family lives at 281 Gardners Row, Appleton.

He received his B.A. from Michigan University. He was a graduate teaching assistant in botany and plant physiology at the University of Maryland, from which he received his M.S. degree in 1959 and his Ph.D. degree in 1961.

V. I. Minahan, Post-Crescent editor, was pleased with the first Sunday edition. "All departments worked very well," he said, "and things went surprisingly smooth, considering the project was new to everyone. We found a few kinks, to be sure, and we know some of the ways the paper can be improved. Every effort will be continued to give the Fox Cities and northeastern Wisconsin the kind of local Sunday newspaper it deserves."

The Post-Crescent's editorial staff is divided into two teams for the Sunday edition and literally puts out two papers Saturday. Beginning about 7 a.m. Saturday, that day's newspaper is put to

Plan English Lecture Series

Lawrence College Augments Freshman Studies Program

A series of lectures to supplement the reading in the Lawrence College Freshman Studies course has been announced by Dr. Ben Ross Schneider, Jr., chairman of the course.

Lectures are held at 11 a.m. in Stansbury Theater of the Music-Drama Center.

During the opening week of school Dr. William Schutte of the English department delivered a lecture on writing, to be followed on Oct. 3 by a further discussion by Schneider and Dr. Herbert Tjossem on theme writing. The talk will supplement a reading of Strunk and White's "Elements of Style."

On Oct. 10, while Plato's "Gorgias" is read, there will be a lecture by Prof. Herman Sinaiko from the University of Chicago. A second lecture on "Gorgias" is scheduled by Dr. Carl Wellman of the Lawrence philosophy department Oct. 17.

Chekov Play
During the reading of Chekov's "Three Sisters" early in November the lecture will be waived in favor of a performance of the play by the Lawrence College Theater directed by David Mayer.

A lecture dealing with John Stuart Mill's "On Liberty" is tentatively scheduled for Nov. 28 by Chong-do Hah, Lawrence instructor in government.

Dr. Mark Field of the University of Illinois is expected to lecture on Marx and Engels Dec. 12 in connection with Engel's "Socialism: Utopian and Scientific." Two lectures are planned to supplement Forster's "Passage to India" during January. Dr. Elizabeth Forter of the Lawrence English department will speak on Jan. 9, while Dr. Minoo Adenwalla of the government staff will speak on Jan. 16.

The lectures are open to the public without admission charge.

Staff Gathers 'Round To Watch Presses Roll

gether with staffers ending their stint about 10:30 a.m.

Some deskmen stay on through the day, watching the teletype and wirephoto machines. The mechanical department continues working on setting metal for the Sunday paper and for next week's paper.

Night Work Begins
Along about 5 p.m., the first staffers drift in for the night shift, which will end shortly before midnight. While there is not a great deal of what newsmen call "hard news" on a Saturday night, the sports and national wire service copy provide a considerable mass of material to be read, selected, edited and placed in the paper.

The editorial department's secondary job on these relatively calm Saturday nights is to prepare future features and what are called time fillers to use throughout the coming week.

Usually, the news department has a sound level just below that of a foundry — telephones ring, typewriters clatter, wire machines clack, people call out over the din and a police radio squawks. Saturday night was less hectic, less pressured. Compared to most working newsmen's days, the Saturday of a Sunday paper is relatively calm and leisurely, because much of the work has been done ahead of time.

About 11:30 p.m. Saturday, the editorial department ended its work. The typewriters stopped, the only sound was the endless and regular clatter of the teletype machines.

Progress of Newspaper
It's possible to see the progress of a newspaper's edition by watching the departments close. First the editorial: the stories are written, the headlines finished, the pictures sent out. Next the linotype machines cease their clacking, the operators clean them up. On the bank, the last of the type goes over to makeup and the pages are locked up and rolled. The lights go out in the composing room.

The knot of Post-Crescent employees and executives move down to the press room, watching. The group includes makeup men and bank men, the men who put the type in the page 30 minutes earlier.

The press rolls, slowly at first as adjustments are made. The Sunday editor can't stand it anymore and runs over to get a copy and page hurriedly through it. The makeup man hesitates, then joins him. They all look at it somewhat fondly, proudly.

The press gets up to speed. It is out, the first Sunday. Walking back up the darkened stairs, through the dark composing room and into the still-lighted editorial department with the Sunday paper, still damp, an editor looks around the room. "Now we look for the mistakes," he mutters.

Three Admit Topsy Driving Over Weekend

Two Plead Guilty In Municipal Court At Appleton

Two men arrested by Outagamie county Patrol Sgt. George Elise on the same road and within a few moments of each other today admitted drunken driving when they were arraigned in Municipal Court.

Clayton Cornelius, 38, route 2, West DePere, was arrested at 8:30 p.m. Saturday on Fish Creek Road near County Trunk E. Elise said Cornelius' car was weaving from one side of the road to the other and ran on the grass at one side of the road. Cornelius was unable to blow up a balloon for the drunkometer test. Cornelius was fined $100 and his driver's license was revoked for one year.

Milton Smith, 77, route 1, Oneida, was arrested on County Trunk E on Fish Creek Road after he almost ran into Elise's patrol car stopped at the intersection.

Smith was sent to Outagamie County jail pending payment of a $100 fine.

Smith was unable to blow up the balloon for the drunkometer test. He said he and Cornelius had been together earlier at a tavern. His driver's license also was revoked for one year.

George Mowrey, 31, 652 Cedar St., Oshkosh, pleaded guilty to a drunken driving charge in Oshkosh Municipal Court this morning. He was fined $131 and his driver's license was revoked for one year.

Mowrey was arrested at 11:45 p.m. Sunday after his auto hit a parked car turning from Jackson Drive on to Speedway Avenue. He declined to take a drunkometer test.

He also resisted officers when they attempted to put him in a cell at Winnebago County jail. In the scuffle, he tore the shirt of an Oshkosh policeman. He was ordered to pay for a new shirt.

The First Dollars in the Dollars for Democrats drive, which kicked-off Friday, were donated by active members of the county Democratic party. From left are Dean Lewis, Kaukauna; Patrick Flanagan, Appleton and Outagamie County drive chairman; Mrs. Elmer Dollevoet, Appleton; Sylvester Lenz, Kimberly, and Mrs. William Cherkasky, Appleton, state drive chairman.

GREEN BAY — The Packers served notice—in full view of a record crowd of 38,669 at City Stadium Sunday afternoon—that they intend to repeat as Western Division champions.

They defeated the rugged 49ers to leap back into the thick of the title race.

The final score was 30 to 10, but don't let it fool you. The last seven points didn't come until midway in the final quarter and then few fans left before the traditional count-down of the final seconds.

5-Way Tie

Green Bay now has a 1-1 record and rests in a 5-way tie in second place in the Western loop with San Francisco, Minnesota, Baltimore and Chicago. Detroit is leading with 2-0.

The Bears of Chicago invade City Stadium next Sunday to renew pro football's longest and bitterest rivalry, while the smarting 49ers invade Detroit.

It took Willie Wood's weaving 39-yard return of a punt for a touchdown halfway through the second quarter to explode the Packer attack.

The big-play run broke a 7-7 tie and gave the Packers a lead they never lost. It was 20-10, Green Bay, at the half and 23-10 at the three-quarter mark.

The Packers, limited to 13 points in losing to Detroit last Sunday, were good offensively and defensively and they were alert, intercepting three passes. They more than held their own in a mean, rough—and at times fist-swinging, battle.

18 for Hornung

The Bays' dramatic Paul Hornung, the NFL's record-breaking scorer, reeled off 18 points on three field goals of 13, 43 and 15 yards, one touchdown and three extra points. He carried 17 times for 51 yards, caught a pass for 12 yards and kicked off over the goal line—and once over the end line—most of the afternoon.

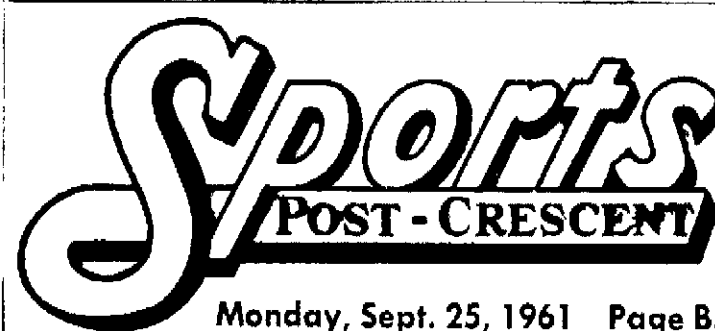

Hornung scored the first TD on a 1-yard belt in the first quarter and set it up with an 8-yard jaunt. After Wood's TD the Bays' only scoring until the fourth frame came on Hornung's three field goals. His second was the 43-yard shot with five second left in the half. The Packers' last TD came on Bart Starr's 21-yard pass to Max McGee.

The Bays came up with a new pass catching "high" — Ron Kramer, who hadn't experienced a day like this since his rookie year of '57. The pounding tight end nailed five passes for 61 yards, including three in the Bays' first TD drive.

Starr, frustrated no end vs. the Lions, broke away with 11 completions in 16 attempts for 161 yards and picked the 49er defense for 285 yards.

Spahn Hurls Shutout For 20th Victory as Braves, Cubs Split

Willey to Start Against Cards In Tonight's Tilt

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Warren Spahn turned into another spectacular pitching performance Sunday, becoming a 20-game winner for the 12th time as he hurled the Milwaukee Braves to a double-header split with the Chicago Cubs.

Spahn stopped the Cubs on two singles in the opener as the Braves took an 8-0 victory. The Cubs came back to win the nightcap 4-2.

Spahn also went out and gave the batters a hand, slugging two doubles and a single in the Braves' 11 - hit attack on Don Cardwell. Don Elston and Barney Schultz. Spahn drove in the only run he needed and scored two more.

Cardwell Loses

The Braves' first run crossed in the second as Spahn doubled home the walking Frank Bolling. That was enough to send starter Cardwell down to his 13th loss against 14 victories.

After Joe Torre made it 2 - 0 with a four-inning homer, Spahn started a four-run outburst in the fifth with his second double. A bases - loaded double by Hank Aaron sent in three of the runs.

Spahn scored again after his single in the sixth. He went from first to third as Al Spangler bunted and Andre Rodgers threw the ball away. Spahn scored as Eddie Mathews hit into a force out. Singles by Lee Maye and Ma-

Mickey Wright Tops Ruth Jessen In Title Playoff

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Mickey Wright of Dallas, Tex., won a sudden death playoff Sunday against Ruth Jessen of Seattle to capture the $8,500 Sacramento Valley Women's Open Golf Tournament.

The two girls had scores of 73-77-73-223 at the end of the final round of the 54-hole tourney.

Then, on the first two holes of the playoff, both of them parred. On the third hole, however, Miss Jessen had a 1-over-par 4 and Miss Wright sank a putt for Beverly Hanson of Indio, Calif., who had a one-stroke lead going into Sunday's play, was 4-over-par to finish fourth with a 226. She was right behind third place Betty Jamieson of San Antonio, Tex., who had 225.

Eagles, Dallas Score Second NFL Triumphs

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Detroit Lions have taken up where they left off last year—as the hottest team in the National Football League—and a deep low bow must go in the direction of their defensive unit.

The Lions, who won seven of their last nine games in 1960, then took the Playoff Bowl, held the top spot of the Western Conference with a 2-0 record after stifling Baltimore's high-powered offense 16-15 Sunday.

In the season opener a week ago, the Detroit defense throttled Green Bay's juggernaut ground game 17-13, and the Lions now have won seven in a row since last season.

Get By Washington

The defending World Champion Philadelphia Eagles, and Dallas share the Eastern lead. The Eagles had to scrape to get by Washington 14-7 while Dallas downed the brand new Minnesota club 21-7, handing the Vikings their first NFL loss.

Everyone else in the NFL evened matters at 1-1 except Pittsburgh, which lost 17-14 to the New York Giants. Green Bay beat San Francisco 30-10 in the Western Conference while Cleveland came from behind to down St. Louis 20-17 in the other Eastern game. Chicago beat Los Angeles 21-17 Saturday night.

The Lions defense, which Coach George Wilson says will get him to the top of the West and keep him there, set up Jim Martin's game winning 49-yard field goal in the final 3:11 when tackle Alex Karras recovered a Colt fumble.

Unitas Hits Moore

Baltimore led 15-13, fashioned when John Unitas hit Lenny Moore with an eight-yard scoring pass. Martin also booted field goals of 30 and 28 yards, while quarterback Earl Morrall hit Terry Barr on a 28-yard scoring toss. Steve Myhra had field goals of 42 and 12 yards as the Colts time and again failed to solve Detroit's defense, that gave only 83 yards rushing and 103 passing.

The Eagles, held scoreless in the first half, got the winner on Sonny Jurgensen's 23-yard pass to Tom McDonald. A fumbled punt, recovered by defensive end Will Renfro on Washington's 23-yard line, set it up. Jurgensen also nailed Pete Retzlaff on a 52-yard scoring toss, and Washington rookie Norm Sneed came right back on an 80-yard TD toss to Fred Dugan.

The Cowboys got superior running from Amos (Forward) Marsh, who gained 64 yards, and

Casper Wins At Portland

Strong Finish Gives Billy Third Straight Victory in Tourney

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Billy Casper Jr., of Apple Valley, Calif., closed with a rush in the final nine holes Sunday and won his third straight Portland Open Golf Championship.

Casper finished with a 72-hole total of 273—15 under par on the 6,675-yard Columbia-Edgewater Course. He matched 5 under par rounds of 67 in the final two days of the four-day, 25,000 open tourney.

Young Dave Hill of Denver, Colo., who held a three-stroke lead over Casper going into the final round, finished second with 274 and a 71 for the round.

"I was worried all the way," said Casper, whose deadly clutch putting finally caught up with the 24-year-old Denver Open Champion on the 12th hole.

Evans Score

Casper evened the score in spectacular fashion. After reaching the green of the par 5, 532-yard hole in two strokes, he holed a 16½ foot eagle putt which traveled downhill and to the right.

The shot seemed to unnerve Hill, who lost the lead going 1-over-par on the par 3 13th hole. Casper calmly sank a short putt on the final hole to wrap up the tense match.

Lombardi Lauds Bays' Defense

Hickey Says Poor Punt, Kickoff Coverage Helped Defeat 49ers

BY LEE REMMEL
Post-Crescent News Service

GREEN BAY — Subdued yet militant, a charged Red Hickey verbally spanked "our special teams" for what happened to his San Francisco 49ers in the gray gloom at City Stadium Sunday afternoon.

"Our punt and kickoff coverage beat us as much as anything," rapped the redhead, who barred the press from the 49er dressing room for 20 minutes while he had heart-to-heart with his unsuccessful athletes, Packer victims for the fifth straight time.

Lost this last be misinterpreted, Hickey declared, "we certainly are not in a state of shock over losing. We're not pushing any panic button—all we have to do is beat Detroit next week and we'll be back on top."

"A lot of things can happen between now and the end of the season. I don't know who's going to win it, but we're going to be right up there with 'em," he vowed with a defiant thrust of the jaw.

He clearly was mystified by his platoons' conduct. "One of our strongest points last year was our special teams," he said ruefully. "Nobody did anything against us. This was a terrible day."

"We didn't punt and we didn't cover when we did (in obvious reference to Willie Wood's 39-yard return of a Tommy Davis kick for a touchdown) and we didn't kick-off, and we didn't cover when we did," the ex-Ram stalwart added dryly.

As another example, he pointed out, "just before the half, the Packers got a field goal back after Davis kicked the 46-yarder because his following kickoff was short and we didn't cover."

"One thing, though," Red appended with a wry grin, "we didn't give up as many points as we did last year (41). That's an improvement."

The Packers' possessive nature compounded the 49ers' problems, Hickey admitted. "They're a fine ball control team. Once they get the ball, it's hard to get it back from 'em. But we got it back enough to win today."

At the same time, he was not impressed with the offensive output of the Packers—or the 49ers. "They had 285 yards and we had 254. I don't think either club made enough yards to be proud of," he said.

He declined to second guess the officiating in connection with the interference call on Abe Wood-

'Just Happy to be Playing Again,' Ron Kramer Says

Post-Crescent News Service

GREEN BAY — "It's been a long time."

This heartfelt admission came from a happy Ron Kramer, who had just had his greatest day as a pro after two years of futility and frustration. En route to the shower in the Packer dressing room, his progress was slow as teammate after teammate came over to congratulate him.

Kramer, brilliant as a rookie in 1957 but an enigmatic disappointment to both himself and the Packer coaching staff since coming out of service, lost his job to a vastly improved Gary Knefele upon his return in 1959 and couldn't win it back.

Sunday it was 1957 all over again. Ron, reinstated as a starter, grabbed off five passes, three of them for first downs that keyed the Packers' first touchdown drive, and blocked with the crunching abandon that made him everybody's All-America in 1956 when he was the Packers' No. 1 draft choice.

"It's just real nice to be playing again," said Ron, a mild enough statement but one which amounts to effervescence for the somewhat phlegmatic ex-Wolverine. "It's been a lot of hard work and he's (Coach Vince Lombardi) giving me a chance."

"I'm just happy I can do my best for the team as well as myself," Kramer added. "This is all that matters to me. If I can do something to help the team, then I'll do it."

Also accepting plaudits and attendant pats on the back was Willie Wood, author of a 39-yard punt return spectacular in the second quarter.

Paul Hornang grabbed Willie by his husky shoulders and told him with a grin. "That's the greatest run I've ever seen, Willie. "Of course," he quipped, "it was a lot of luck—you don't have much talent."

Describing his dazzling excursion with a shy smile, Willie confided, "catching the ball on the run, that always helps and I had a little running room. After that, the blocking kicked up."

As he headed for the training his first game in 10 Packer season, he shot back over his shoulder, "I hope we can have to win but it's no fun sitting on the bench. You feel more a Down the line, ex-Gray Ghost

"What happened?"

"Ah ran out of gas," Forester drawled back.

A svelte Dave Hanner, who lost "10 or 11 pounds" since last week's appendectomy wandered through the dressing room felicitating his teammates and reporting on his condition.

"It didn't feel good" missing his first game in 10 Packer season, Dave admitted. "It felt good to win but it's no fun sitting on the bench. You feel more a part of the club if you're playing."

Nelson Will Meet With GOP Leaders

Governor Will Try to 'Iron Out' Differences Before Fall Session

MADISON (AP)—Gov. Gaylord Nelson said today he expects to meet with Republican and Democratic leaders next week in a group headed by Sen. Frank Packer to iron out tax policy differences before the legislature reconvenes Oct. 30.

The Democratic chief executive told a news conference he will come to the bargaining table with a number of "adequate proposals" on which to base talks and said he also stands ready to supply a specific tax program "if that is what the Republicans want."

Nelson's comments were prompted by a letter mailed him Saturday by the Republican caucus committee, an 11-member group headed by Sen. Frank Packer of Brownsville.

"Whenever you are able to reach a decision in regard to tax proposals, this committee will promptly to arrange a joint caucus of Republican legislators from both houses," the letter said.

The governor said he would talk to Panzer this week to arrange details of the later meeting. The preliminary talks with the senator "will be among us," and not open to the press, Nelson added.

Killed by GOP

The chief executive saw his income tax centered revenues program killed by a GOP controlled legislature, then exercised his veto power on a Republican bill pegged to adoption of a 3 percent sales tax.

Despite the differences, Nelson said it would be "quite simple" to forward a new revenue plan. And he said he viewed the chances of reaching agreement on taxes at this stage "as good or better" than they were when the 1961 session convened in January.

Nelson would not identify specific proposals that might be contained in a new tax program carrying his endorsement. But he said he thought his compromise plan would include three or four suggestions in areas "where there is every chance for agreement."

A system of withholding state income taxes would be one of the Reiss tug and started to swing them, he said. He added that the bow into the ship on the east Minnesota's method of forgiving bank of the river "when the current grabbed her and shoved her nose into the mudbank."

With her bow stuck fast, the tug pulled the stern into a mudbank on the other edge of the channel, bringing the vessel to a complete stop across the river.

The tug hooked a line onto her stern and tried to pull her off, "but the current was stronger than the tug," Wolters said. He finally sent a small boat to the Northern dock with a cable.

The cable was snubbed to the rearing post and the ship pulled herself off the bank by using her own winches. The tug assisted by pulling on the stern.

Bride, Best Man Die in Accident Near Madison

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Three traffic deaths this morning were added to a weekend toll of eight which included a car-truck collision that took the life of a new bride and of the best man in her wedding party.

The fatalities sent Wisconsin's 1961 highway toll up to 636, compared with 607 on this day a year ago.

Percy R. Scheuers, 26, and 21-year-old Roy E. Levenhage, both of Eldorado, died at St. Agnes Hospital in Fond du Lac today a few hours after the car in which they were riding left Highway 23 six miles west of Fond du Lac and cartwheeled into a field. Both were thrown from the vehicle.

Mrs. Wanda Vendt, 72, of Milwaukee was killed today when a car driven by her husband, K. R. Vendt, sideswiped a truck while passing in the city of Sheboygan, then veered across the street and struck a parked car.

Mrs. Eunice Hacker Crane, 19, of Middleton, and Keith L. Peterson, 24, of Madison, were killed in a car-truck collision at Springfield Corners west of Madison early Sunday.

Several hours earlier the Middleton girl had been married to Airman Duane L. Crane of Trux Air Force Base, Crane, who was riding in the car, was in satisfactory condition in a Madison hospital. The couple had been married at Springfield Corners.

Assistant Dane County Coroner Jack Stevenson said Peterson, the best man at the wedding, was driving the car. The car and a truck collided at the intersection of County Highway P and Highway 12 and 13. The truck driver was not injured.

A Lime Ridge man, Harry F. Bernhardt, 73, was killed late Saturday when his car left Sauk County Highway K on a curve about two miles south of Reedsburg. Bernhardt was alone.

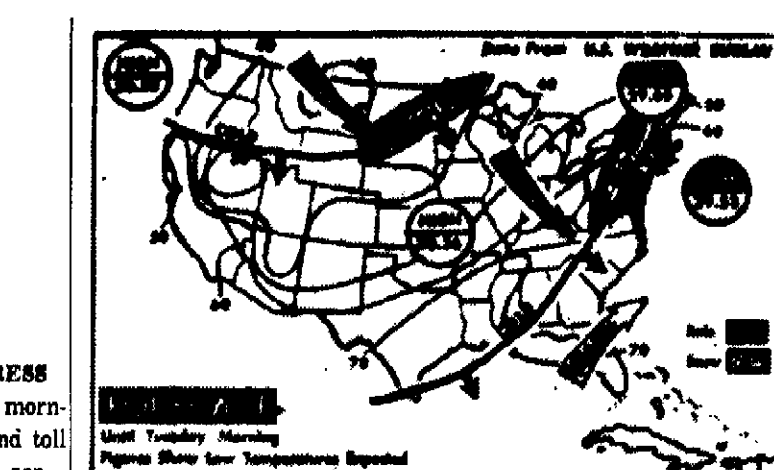

William Galien, 30, of Milwaukee, died in Waukesha Memorial Hospital early Sunday of injuries suffered Friday night. The car in which he was a passenger struck a utility pole after leaving Highway 18 at a curve near Waukesha.

John F. Douglass, 19, of the Milwaukee suburb of Wauwatosa, was killed Saturday night and four other young people injured when a car struck a pole and ran into a ditch on Highway 110 about a mile and a half north of Oshkosh.

John Schmidt, 64, of Neenah, was killed Saturday night in the collision of his sportscar and another auto on Highway 44-47 just north of Bonduel in Shawano County.

CAB Begins Study Of Airline Finances

BY SYLVIA PORTER

This Thursday in Washington, the presidents of all our domestic airlines plus Pan American will meet with members of the Civil Aeronautics Board for an unprecedented conference to discuss the deep and disturbing troubles of our airline industry.

The meeting—to be held at the invitation of the Federal agency which has the power to regulate air routes, rates, schedules, etc.—will be, in the opinion of George T. Baker, president and chairman of the board of National Airlines, "a brain storming session on the whole range of airline problems and CAB policies."

When the domestic airlines zoomed into the jet age about three years ago, from every side came predictions that this was to be aviation's most glamorous era and the jet passenger planes were received in what amounted to a public celebration.

Instead what occurred was that the airline industry plummeted into a sea of red ink. In the first half of this year alone, for instance, the dozen major trunklines lost over $13 million.

Jets Prove Costly

Instead of ushering in a period of large, loaded planes flying at record speeds between cities and filling the cash registers, the jets opened a period of large planes, yawning with emptiness and draining the cash registers. Jets cost more to buy or lease, more to operate than piston engine planes, but the break-even point was a jet airliner is about the same in load as on a piston engine plane. If, say, the break-even point is a 50 per cent load, a largest piston engine plane carrying 84 passengers can cover its operating cost with an average of 42 passengers while a largest jet plane carrying 123 passengers needs 62 to cover its operating costs. As Baker put it when I interviewed him in New York last week, "This means that with full keel, early Saturday when his car hit a bridge abutment in planes would have to carry 50 per cent more passengers on the

Summer Ends On Wintry, Rainy Note

Summer ended last week on a wintry note with rain and drizzle persisting Sunday and today along a cold front stretching from the Great Lakes to Texas.

Easterners however were still sweltering in record-breaking heat since the cool weather stagnated over the Middle West with Wisconsin being no exception.

Rains continued to drench the Chicago area, adding 3.40 inches over the weekend to push the September total to 11.72 inches, nearly 3 inches more than the previous September high recorded in 1936.

The five-day outlook for Wisconsin predicts temperatures averaging 6 to 10 degrees below normal which is a high in the 60s and a low of 42 to 50. It will be a little warmer early in the week, cooling again toward the weekend.

Total precipitation will be about one inch with occasional rain during the latter part of the week.

It was topcast weather for the Fox Cities over the weekend with Sunday's high being 59 and this morning's low 45.

1956 Ruling Cited

There's a special reason for Baker's angry attitude and it goes back to 1956, when the CAB gave Northeast Airlines permission to fly the Miami-New York route over the strong protests of National and Eastern Airlines.

The route hasn't developed enough business to support the three airlines and National and Eastern have suffered badly.

The situation is now at the point where every force concerned—including the CAB and the Federal Aviation Agency—admits the need for action, for coordination of government policies, review of it is not a relationship—it is routes and rates, stepped up a set of relationships in which motions and appeals, etc.

The CAB looks at the airlines' through three sets of glasses," Baker thinks, could mark the beginning of constructive steps to says, the CAB will decide public convenience demands more creeping strangulation of the air-petters and flights on an air line companies into a period of route. When it wears a second set, the CAB will tell an airline air travel by us and services for it is operating too many flights. us.

When it wears a third set, it has

For those residents who are unable to come to the dining room, meals are sent up to the individual floors, where attendants assist them if necessary.

Stannard said all of the attendants have taken courses recommended by the state and that he will only hire those who like and want to help older people. He said that one must want to help them in order to do justice to the job.

Ministers, Priests Visit

A file is kept on the religion of the residents and a priest or minister is called if needed. No restriction is placed on religion. Those who are able are free to go to the church of their choice. For those unable to leave the building, some of the ministers and priests come to the home on Sunday and hold services there. The ministers and priests are free to visit the home at any time.

Regular visiting hours are from 1.30 to 5 p.m. daily.

Each resident has his or her own clothes, purchased by them or by their family and laundered and ironed by the home. Some of the residents have other personal belongings such as a favorite small chair, wardrobes, chests of drawers and other small articles.

Clubs Entertain

Many organizations and clubs in New London have done things for the oldsters, such as donations on holidays and giving the residents special treats. Residents especially enjoy it when a children's club visits the home. Last winter all of the beauticians spent an afternoon at the home dressing the hair of each of the women.

Many of the residents are looking forward to automobile rides this fall. Several New London people have offered their time for this.

Any club or organization that would like to tour the home is welcome. Stannard said.

Laird Blasts Approval of New Agency

Says Arms Control Inconsistent With World Situation

Post-Crescent Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — The administration has placed itself in the position of not letting its left hand not know what its right hand is doing by urging passage of legislation creating a special agency on disarmament, Rep. Melvin R. Laird, Republican, Marshfield, charged on the house floor. The statement was made during a debate on the disarmament agency conference report approved Saturday 251 to 50.

In an unsuccessful attempt to persuade the membership to vote against the disarmament agency measure, Laird gave the reaction of Wisconsin people to the bill as an example of how the nation's citizenry regarded it.

He told the house that he had been in Wisconsin when the state's 32nd Division was called up, the timing of which coincided with debate on the original house version of a bill creating a separate agency to handle arms control.

Charges Duplication

The people in Wisconsin, he said, could not understand why it should be necessary to call its famous division up for active duty if disarmament was such an important activity that it warranted a new agency to handle it.

Not only is the idea of a disarmament agency entirely inconsistent with the present tense international situation, Laird said, but the activities of the proposed agency will be in direct duplication of the disarmament division of the state department and other already established governmental programs.

He stressed that the bill for operating the new agency would come to $10 million the first year, but that it would be folly to try to predict how much additional money would be spent on it in its second, third or fifth year. Not only is it difficult to try to explain to our own people why we need a disarmament agency at a time when we are calling our men to active duty and spending billions on military defense, but it will be next to impossible to try to explain the idea to the free world, in Laird's opinion.

The vote of the members of the Wisconsin delegation on the conference report follows:

In favor: Reps. Robert W. Astemeyer, (D-Waterbury); Vernon W. Thomson, (R-Richland Center); Clement J. Zablocki, (D-Milwaukee).

Against: Reps. Henry C. Schadeberg, (R-Burlington); Laird, and Alvin F. O'Konski, (R-Mercer).

Not recorded: Reps. Henry S. Reuss, (D-Milwaukee); William K. Van Pelt, (R-Fond du Lac); John W. Byrnes, (R-Green Bay), and Lester R. Johnson, (D-Black River Falls).
